—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

(Copyright, 1927).

TONIGHT and tomorrow night, look for shooting stars. This earth, rolling slowly on its axis, a thousand miles an hour, and around the sun, nearly two million miles a day is now crossing the "Leonid Meteor Stream," particles of solid matter, of various sizes, some smaller than your fist, some bigger than a house.

Luckily, when they strike our atmosphere, at terrific speed, friction with the air melts them, and you see a "shooting star," red, hot material, largely iron, on its way to earth, falling in the ocean. Millions of these meteors fall to earth, in the form of dust, gradually piling up at the ocean's bottom.

IT IS said 240,000 shooting stars were seen in nine hours, going through the Leonid stream in 1833.

We may be grateful for our atmosphere, in supplying us with oxygen, protecting us from a bombardment that would destroy every building on earth, and kill nearly all human beings on it.

STOCKS were cheerful yesterday, "big steel" went up $4, General Motors went up, publication of an alleged picture of Henry Ford's new car seemed not to worry Wall Street. Dry goods store and chain store stocks went up.

MR. ISAAC GIMBEL, of Gimbel Brothers, doing a yearly business of $125,000,000 in four American cities, said on Sunday: "Some Americans do not realize what it means to do business in forty-eight great states, with the same money, laws, credit and language everywhere.

"When I was last in Cairo I saw big wagons of the Paris Bon Marche going through the streets. I looked up the head of their Egyptian branch and found that they had come three thousand miles from Paris to do a business of $1,000,000 a

Gov. Fisher Offers Help in Gas Explosion

"Any assistance the state government can extend is at your disposal," said Gov. John S. Fisher in a telegram received by Mayor Charles H. Kline yesterday. In the message the Governor extended his sympathy to the relatives of those killed and to the sufferers in yesterday's gas blast in Reedsdale street.

4 Probes Of Blast Begun

What caused the Equitable Gas Company blast in Reedsdale street, North Side, yesterday, never may be actually determined.

This was indicated today by workers in four separate investigations who must depend almost entirely on the statements of those nearby, but not actually within the zone of the explosion, when the tank let go with its hail of death and destruction. So far as is known now, every workman actually engaged in repairing the tank which exploded was killed.

Every gas expert in the employ of the plant of the Equitable Gas Company in Reedsdale street. Two bodies taken from the wreckage of the Pittsburgh Clay Pot Company's building brought the total of known dead to 23.

More than 300 workers were toiling to clear away the mass of twisted steel and other debris that it is feared holds the bodies of more victims. Thirty-seven employes of the clay pot works are unaccounted for, and Arthur E. Gray, treasurer of the concern, is convinced that many of them died in the explosion. Five of the company's men are known to have perished, but others of the 140 men

Coroner Asks Kin Of Missing to Aid In Identifying

Coroner William J. MacGregor today called upon all those who have relatives or friends missing since the fatal Reedsdale street gas explosion yesterday, to notify his office or the Red Cross emergency headquarters, 911 Ridge avenue, at once, that search for the dead may be systematized. He asks especially that those who had relatives working in plants near the scene and who are unaccounted for to notify the coroner's office.

Explosion Looters Fined

"The offense with which you two are charged merits a penalty far more stern than a $50 fine which the law empowers me to impose for a first offense, and I hold you for court."

Magistrate E. M. Hough in Allegheny Police Station this morning thus disposed of two men alleged to have been looting homes of those wrecked by yesterday's gas explosion in the Manchester district. The defendants were Joseph Jerinski, 27, 1218 Reedsdale street, and Frank Linshu, 48, 32 Stedman street.

KING GONE ON EVE OF TRIALS

W. L. King, resigned director of the Citizens League, today checked out of the Penn-Lincoln Hotel, told an inquirer he was leaving on personal business and disappeared again. "I believe I did see that fellow go out to the train," said a gateman at the Pennsylvania Station shortly afterward.

This the third "disappearance" of King, coupled with a late meeting of the full board of the league at the downtown Y. M. C. A. last night, and the existence of a statement charging frame-up in at least one league case, apparently—and, in some quarters, it was said positively—spelled the end of every single prosecution begun by King in his own name or in the league's—federal cases, conspiracy cases and gambling cases.

FRAMEUP ALLEGED

The frame-up is alleged in at least the Baum boulevard case where sale of liquor was alleged. King had sworn out a warrant on information from his chief investigator, Wein-

Sacasa Told: Quit Parley or Lose Aid

Today's Disclosures

Today The Sun-Telegraph publishes the second of the series of articles bringing to light the secret anti-American machinations of the present Mexican government. Today's article, based like others on official documents from the confidential files of President Calles, shows:

Secretary Kellogg

That the American government sought to end the Mexican-inspired conflict in Nicaragua in October of last year by calling a peace conference between the warring factions.

That it was President Calles who wrecked this conference by warning Dr. Juan Bautista Sacasa, the Nicaraguan rebel leader, that any peace arrangements must be based on an agreement previously made between Calles and Sacasa.

That Calles ordered the Mexican ambassador to Gautemala to suspend all "financial aid" to Sacasa if the latter did not reply to the warning in a satisfactory manner.

That Sacasa immediately thereafter broke off peace negotiations and decided to establish the seat of his revolutionary government at Puerto Cabezas, on the Atlantic coast of Nicaragua, and that the Mexican government paid him $25,000 for expenses incidental to the installation of such a government.

And that President Calles intended, after the establishment of a puppet government in Nicaragua, to do likewise in other Central American republics, with the view of establishing an anti-American Bolsheviki Federation as a nucleus to be joined later by other Latin American countries.

These documents again substantiate the statements of President Coolidge and Secretary Kellogg on the Mexican-Nicaraguan situation, and prove American intervention in Nicaragua to have been justified and necessary.

These revelations will be continued in The Sun-Telegraph tomorrow, supported by secret Mexican official documents signed by President Calles.

HEARST PAPERS BARE SECRET DOCUMENTS OF ANTI-U. S. PLOT

Mexican President Sought to Form Central American Bolshevik League Opposed To Interests of This Nation

By JOHN PAGE.

(Copyright, 1927, by The Washington Herald).

The Hearst newspapers today publish documentary proof that the Corinto Peace Conference, arranged by the American State Department in October of last year in the hope of ending the Nicaraguan revolt, was broken up by President Calles of Mexico.

This revolt, as shown by the Hearst papers yesterday, was organized and financed by the Mexican Executive for the purpose of overthrowing the pro-American Conservative Government of Nicaragua, which had gone on record as favoring the carrying out of an agreement with the United States permitting construction of a transcontinental canal through its territory by the American Government. President Calles proposed to establish in its place a "Liberal" regime under Dr. Juan Bautista Sacasa, pledged to oppose American construction of the canal.

Later there will be shown the hand of a powerful government on the other hemisphere, backing up Mexico. An American canal which might be of great value to this country commercially and in war is not wanted by these governments.

Two months of bloody but indecisive fighting, which began in August, 1926, had cooled the ardor of the Liberal troops to the point where they were wilting under the absentee leadership of Dr. Sacasa, safe in his refuge in Guatemala, and were willing to talk peace.

Our State Department, gauging this willingness correctly, issued invitations to a peace conference to be held on the U. S. S. Tulsa, an American warship anchored off the Nicaraguan Pacific port of Corinto. The invitations were quickly accepted by both the Nicaraguan Government and Liberal rebels, the negotiations began under favorable auspices and a peace agreement seemed probable on the basis of Liberal participation in the government, with several posts in the Cabinet, but with a Conservative President.

Then Calles threw his bombshell. The explosion blew up the Corinto Peace Conference and so far has cost the lives of several thousand Nicaraguans, two or three score Mexicans and half a dozen American Marines. The total cost, in lives or otherwise, has not yet been reckoned, and must depend upon events still in the making.

The Calles bomb was wrapped up in a telegram sent by Gen. Jose Alvarez, the Mexican President's Chief of Staff, to Aaron Saenz, Secretary of the Mexican Department of Foreign Relations. The English text follows:

By order of the President you will please communicate urgently with Ambassador Cravioto (Mex-

PITTSBURGH'S CONTRASTS

By B. C. FORBES

B. C. Forbes, business expert who herewith gives his impressions of Pittsburgh as gained from his first visit, was in this city on October 20 when he delivered a "straight-from-the-shoulder" speech before the Chamber of Commerce, raking leaders of the coal and steel industries for their laggardness.

I'VE just visited Steelopolis for the first time—visited it too hurriedly to get acquainted, so I plan to go again in the hope of getting better acquainted.

One's first impressions are mixed—very mixed.

But Pittsburgh is entering a new era, I believe.

ADMITTEDLY, I entered the city in more or less critical frame of mind. Pittsburgh is synonymous with the steel industry and is closely identified with the coal industry. Neither industry has been conspicuously progressive in leading this country towards more ideal relations with workers—and any industry that has lagged in humanitarianism cannot excite one's wholehearted enthusiasm.

SUCH facts as these were on my mind when I stepped off the train:

The steel industry was lamentably slow in abolishing the twelve-hour day and the seven-day work-week. Although it made more millionaires than almost any other industry, thanks partly to a friendly tariff, the industry has not set other industries an example by providing for its workers, model ican Ambassador to Guatemala), and have him inform Sacasa that if the peace arrangements at Corinto are not based on arrangements concluded in this city, with Liberal elements controlling the executive power, the Mexican Government will retire all moral and material aid immediately. You will instruct Cravioto to suspend all financial aid to Sacasa if the latter does not reply in a satisfactory manner.

Chief of the President's Staff,
General J. Alvarez.

The Sun-Telegraph is publishing elsewhere a fac-simile of the original of this threatening telegram, taken from the official files of the Mexican Government.

The immediate effect of this historic document, dated October 18, 1926, was all that the Mexican Executive could have desired, though a later effect was that of American military intervention in Nicaragua and the final effects are still unknown.

Ambassador Cravioto's delivery of the Calles ultimatum to Dr. Sacasa, in Guatemala City, resulted in hurried conferences between that Liberal Nicaraguan chieftain and his advisers. Cravioto's representations, combined with the Mexican Executive's threats to cut off all money payments, sufficed to bring Sacasa and his followers into line with the uncompromising position taken by Calles. But several days were required for Sacasa, in his turn, to convince the peace-bent Liberal delegates at the Corinto Conference of the necessity of breaking off negotiations. When fully informed of the Mexican Government's position, they agreed.

One Liberal delegate, in discussing the breakup of the peace conference with Lawrence Dennis, American Charge d'Affaires in Nicaragua, admitted openly that his party had the unlimited backing of the Mexican Government, and seemed inclined to boast of it.

These developments in Guatemala City and Corinto enabled Senor Saenz, the Mexican Secretary of Foreign Relations, to reply to the President's Chief of Staff on October 25, just a week following receipt of the Alverez telegram. His reply is contained in the following official telegram, taken from the files of the Mexican Government:

To the Chief of the President's Staff, General Jose Alvarez.

Please inform the President that Cravioto today communicates the following:

"Sacasa, after a long conference with Zepeda and de la Selva, has decided to discontinue the peace conference at Corinto and to depart immediately for Puerto Cabezas to establish the Constitutional Government.

"At a meeting which I held with the Ministers of Salvador, Costa Rica and Honduras, and the Foreign Minister of Guatemala, we agreed to recommend to our respective governments the immediate recognition of Sacasa, in order to lend moral force to his government.

"I beg you earnestly to call this recommendation to the attention of the President, recommending to him that Mexico should be the first to extend recognition, in order to solidify our policy in Nicaragua for the future. I have given fifty thousand pesos to Sacasa for preliminary expenses incidental to the installation of his government."

I communicate this to you for your information and await your further instructions.

Secretary Saenz.

The Hearst papers are in possession of the original of this telegram, obtained, like others reproduced in these articles, from Mexican Government employes who feel that the ultimate welfare of their country will be promoted by giving the American people accurate information of the goings on in Mexico.

The failure of the Corinto Conference to end civil warfare in Nicaragua was a triumph for President Calles and one of the most notable victories of Mexican over American diplomacy in recent years. It was a humiliating defeat for the American State Department, which had arranged for the conversations to be carried on aboard an American warship, technically American soil. The prestige of the American Government was therefore involved, and every influence was exerted to bring about a peace agreement which would put an end to the conflict and satisfy both the pro-Mexican Liberals and the pro-American Conservatives.

Our State Department, as Secretary Kellogg disclosed later, was aware that the real purpose of the Sacasa revolution was the establishment of an anti-American government in Nicaragua. Full documentary proof was lacking, but it was known that President Calles proposed by force or otherwise to put Mexico at the head of a Bolshevist Federation to include the five Central American Republics of Nicaragua, Guatemala, El Salvador, Costa Rica and Honduras. It was proposed later, as opportunity offered, to add the Caribbean countries of Venezuela, Colombia, Haiti and San Domingo, and perhaps eventually Cuba and Porto Rico.

Each unit of the Federation, Calles intended, should be locally self-governing but follow the foreign policy of Mexico, particularly in its anti-American aspects.

Speeches made at gatherings in the Mexican headquarters of the Calles-fostered Anti-Imperialist League contained frequent references to the Mexican President's plans for such a Federation. In one such speech a Mexican Government official also made the open assertion that if the Sacasa revolution should be successful, Nicaragua would immediately abrogate the treaties giving the United States the right to build a canal through her terriory and establish a naval base at Fonseca Bay.

"The canal will be built and the naval base established," he said, "but by another power."

This speaker urged his audience, whatever country they might come from, to aid in the Nicaraguan fight for "freedom," so that Nicaragua, in her turn, might aid them to obtain freedom in their own countries.

"The true freedom such as only Russia and Mexico now know," he shouted.

(Tomorrow official documents to be published in The Sun-Telegraph will reveal secret expenditures of the Calles Government totaling more than a million dollars and used in further measures hostile to the United States.)

MEXICAN EXPOSE STIRS

By Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—Publication of a copyrighted article in the Hearst newspapers showing that Mexico had financed an anti-American revolution in Nicaragua created a profound sensation in diplomatic and official circles.

While the State Department refused to discuss the comments on the ground that they did not originate from an American source, the Mexican embassy here was prompt to issue the expected denial, alleging that the documents are forgeries. The statement follows:

"The document given out by some American papers regarding the alleged interference of Mexico in Nicaragua are nothing but a gross, unequivocal forgery. Said publication is only another item in the long catalogue of forgeries and malicious imaginations with which some papers try unsuccessfully to upset international relations."

The Mexican embassy statement was the only formal official comment, but the publication was carefully scanned in every embassy, cabled from here to all parts of Latin America and read with keen interest by members of Congress. It was admitted that it would have an important bearing on moulding policy in the next Congress and for this reason members declined to comment.

Senators Borah and Swanson, of the Foreign Relations Committee, said they would prefer to await complete publication of the series before saying anything.

BLAST CLOSES 8 SCHOOLS

Seven public schools and one parochial school were forced to close as a result of the North Side gas tank blast and the fact that no school children were killed either at schools or en route was described as miraculous by principals and teachers. A dozen or more children were cut by flying glass when glass from shattered windows blew into school rooms or fell into play yards, but none were injured seriously.

The schools which dismissed classes or were not opened for the day are St. Mary's parochial, Grandview avenue; Thaddeus Stevens, South Main street; John M. Conroy, Page and Fulton streets; Webster, Reedsdale street; Manchester, Chateau street; Snodgrass, Sweetbriar street; North Continuation, Duquesne Way; Rose, Rose and Charles streets.

flew from New York to the luncheon, which shows President Coolidge's interest in flying. Congress ought to share that interest more enthusiastically.

EDWARD P. WARNER, assistant Secretary of the Navy, in charge of flying, says the Panama Canal is in danger, "its air defenses hopelessly inadequate."

That might interest the government, if only because the Panama canal last year earned $15,121,119, a new record.

CHICAGO'S arts' ball committee planned to exhibit a Godiva, mounted on a white horse, as the ball's piece de resistance. You remember, the lady who rode through the town with her long hair for clothing, when her husband dared her.

Chicago liked the Godiva idea so well that seven Godivas instead of one were moved and seconded like the three Topsys in a "Tom" show. But the difficulty is to find even one Godiva not bobbed. Long hair is necessary, with William Thompson as mayor.

THE committee reports, sadly, "you can find plenty of good lookers with bobbed hair and a few not very good lookers with long hair. But good lookers and long hair combined are scarce."

MR. L. H. LEE, convicted of a murder and sentenced by the judge, comes out smiling to pose for photographers, holding in his hand three red roses, "sent by a lady." The type that poses, smiling, for photographs just after being sentenced to death, is the type that commits murder. The type of lady that sends the roses is the mystery.

MRS. PEABODY, head of the women's committee for law enforcement, says "ten million women are not only talking and praying, but working to retain prohibition, and see that it is enforced."

They need not work or pray to keep prohibition in the constitution; nothing can get it out.

As for enforcement, there is room for much working and praying in that direction.

NEW YORK'S week-end crime was seven killed, three injured, guns and knives used. Each corner of this country contributes its little or big crime wave.

TWO charming adventurous young ladies named Talbot and Sanford will hunt big game in Africa. Elephants, lions, perhaps gorillas, will bite the dust. There is one comfort in such killing. It tends to eliminate disease.

Wild animals carry and perpetuate disease germs, each a breeding ground for germ colonies. Eventually the only living thing on earth will be man. He will have the planet to himself for many millions of years, to show what he can do with it.

injured and homeless in the blast-stricken lower North Side. The sum set aside by the city was soon augmented by a donation of $1,000 by the Syria Temple executive committee.

An appeal for contributions for relief work was made yesterday over radio by Miss Sophie Levin, who asked the public to send donations to Red Cross headquarters. Other donations were being received by the newspapers, the Salvation Army and the Volunteers of America. Representatives of the three organizations were seen in the wrecked district all through the night.

The $100,000 set aside by the city is in the form of an emergency fund and it will be used mainly by the health and welfare departments of the city and by the police and fire departments.

In police and fire stations used to care for the homeless, as well as the city's quarters in the old Exposition Building, Duquesne way, cots for the homeless are being donated by the Fort Pitt Bedding Company and many stores in the city are furnishing blankets. Quarters have also been established in the Manchester car house, St. Peter's School, Diamond street; the Home of the Friendless, Pressley street, the Woods Run Settlement House, the Bedford Apartments, Bedford avenue; the Potter Hotel, Wylie avenue, and 25 rooms in the Fort Pitt Hotel.

STOCKS are not the only things increasing in value. The ten most important agricultural crops of the country have an "indicated value" to date of eight thousand million dollars, which, according to Mr. Garrett, who knows, is five hundred millions above a recent estimate.

WELDER PREDICTED BLAST

MONACA, Pa., Nov. 15.—"That job is worst I have ever been ordered out on. It is practically suicide to work on that tank with electric torches."

This was the parting word of Ellwood Carrol, 35, of Freedom, missing foreman in the Pittsburgh gas explosion, to his father, Clinton Carrol, of this place, before the son left with a gang of electric welders for the scene of yesterday's blast.

No trace of Carrol has been found. The father and the missing man's wife, Margaret, viewed the bodies of victims in the morgue at Pittsburgh yesterday but without avail. The father renewed the search today, but with little hope that the body of his son will be found.

"I am not feeling so well today," the foreman told his wife as he left home yesterday morning to board a train for Pittsburgh. "I will just put the men to work and I will come back home. It is a very dangerous piece of work."

Carrol told his father and wife, they say, that he had worked on many tanks in the Texas oil fields, where he was employed before he came to this district two years ago, but the danger was small compared with the Reedsdale street plant of the Equitable Gas Company.

Carrol was one of the gang employed by the Riter-Conley Company's Freedom plant.

BLAST INSURANCE LIGHT

PROPERTY LOSS WILL REACH MILLIONS

Some 50 large commercial houses and 200 owners of houses were hard hit by the gas tornado that ripped its way through Manchester, according to unofficial estimates made today.

And there were indications that little, if any, of the property damage would be met by insurance policies. W. S. Diggs of Hoover & Diggs, in a statement, said that few standard fire policies extend over damage initiated by concussion.

MANY WINDOWS BROKEN

The most general loss, which will extend over the four corners of the city, will be in glass windows, much of which was covered by insurance. Virtually every downtown building suffered in this direction, particularly the department stores with large display windows. Insurance, however, was expected to cover much of this damage, which was estimated in some quarters as low as $50,000 and in others as high as $150,000.

The home section hit hardest was in the 1100-1200 blocks of Reedsdale street, where the tanks exploded. Fronts of houses were torn off in many instances and rooms wrecked beyond recognition.

Insurance experts pointed out today that attempts to estimate the total damage caused by the explosion were, if nothing else, premature. It was agreed that the damage would mount into the millions, but whether it would pass $10,000,000 or sink far below that figure were questions to be answered only after days have been spent in inventory.

The commercial houses where serious damage was done included:

Equitable Gas Company offices, 1241 Reedsdale street; Carnegie Steel Company's McCutcheon mills, 1281 Reedsdale street; Pittsburgh Clay Pot Company, 1201 Reedsdale street; Joseph Horne Company warehouse, Reedsdale and Fontella streets; Horne garage, 916 Manchester boulevard; Kaufmann's warehouse, Reedsdale street and Allegheny avenue; Pittsburgh Iron Folding Bed Company, 1106-14 Reedsdale street; Pittsburgh Instrument and Machine Company, 1026 Reedsdale street; Rederer Hotel, 1817 Reedsdale street; National Casket Company, 1500 Reedsdale street; Scholes Metal Garage Company, 1746 Reedsdale street; B. GULF TOURISTS SADDENED BY BLAST NEWS

By MAX HENRICI,
Staff Correspondent

HOUSTON, Tex., Nov. 15.—In two years Pittsburgh will be linked by navigable waterways, suitable for river craft, with Houston and Galveston. In anticipation of this development the Carnegie Steel Company has erected a $2,500,000 warehouse on the Houston ship channel.

The Pittsburghers of the Chamber of Commerce party made a trip by steamer down the ship channel yesterday, inspected the warehouse and steamship terminals, and studied the plans for the intracoastal canal, which will run from the Mississippi River at Plaquimine, La., through Beaumont and Morgan City to Houston, and eventually to Brownsville, on the Rio Grande.

They were entertained at luncheon by the Houston Chamber of Commerce at the Rice Hotel and in the evening were guests of the same organization at a dinner at the site of the battle of San Jacinto, the decisive engagement in the struggle of the Texans for their independence.

At the luncheon Mayor Oscar F. Holcombe, of Houston, expressed sympathy for the loss Pittsburgh had suffered in the Equitable Gas Company explosion and said Houston stood ready to render any help that lay within its power. Councilman Robert Garland said that as a "city father" he lamented the death of the explosion victims as if they were his children. At his request all rose and stood for a minute in silent prayer for Divine mercy. Other speakers at the luncheon were T. F. Gaylord, president of the chamber; Joe T. Taylor, president of the J. T. Taylor Brokerage Company, and Roger J. Seaman, of the Houston chamber, a former Pittsburgher.

At the dinner last night the speakers were Joseph W. Evans, E. A. Peden, F. M. Law and Jesse H. Jones, of Houston, and Thomas A. Dunn, president of the Diamond Ice Company; James Francis Burke, former congressman; Ambrose N. Diehl, vice president of the Carnegie Steel Company, and George S. Davison, president of the Gulf Refining Company, on behalf of the Pittsburghers. Mr. Davison's address dealt with the commercial relations existing between Houston and Pittsburgh, with special reference to the freight passing from one city to the other.

The foregoing resume of the day's events fails to give an adequate picture of the charm of the proceedings. The Houstonians could not have been more hospitable; they treated the Pittsburghers as if they were brothers. It was with a feeling of genuine regret that the Pittsburghers left tonight for New Orleans, for they had been captivated by the beauty of this sub-tropical city and the friendship of its citizens.

PROBE OIL BRIBE COURT CONTEMPT

JUDGE APPOINTS BURNS ACTIVITY INVESTIGATORS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—(AP)—An investigation to determine whether there has been a criminal contempt of the District of Columbia Supreme Court in connection with the Fall-Sinclair trial jury surveillance scandal was ordered today by Justice Frederick L. Siddons.

District Attorney Gordon, John V. Lasley, a former district attorney, and James E. Easby-Smith, a prominent member of the District of Columbia bar, were named by the justice to conduct the inquiry, and, if cause is found, to proceed "as expeditiously as possible to prepare, file, present and prosecute in this court against such person or persons charges of criminal contempt of court, to the end that the authority and power of the court be vindicated, sustained and enforced."

Justice Siddons, who was the trial judge in the Fall-Sinclair case, based his action upon statements contained in the four affidavits filed with him and which resulted in the declaration of a mistrial in the celebrated Teapot Dome case.

Three affidavits told of activities of detectives in the employ of the Burns agency in shadowing jurors and of remarks attributed to Junior Edward J. Kidwell, to the effect that he expected material gain for himself from the case.

KING GONE AGAIN

buy, that purchases of liquor had been made. After a subsequent raid, it is alleged, King discovered that no "buys" had been made, but, with Weinberg, pasted labels of the kind of liquor described in the original warrant onto other bottles "to make the case stand up."

This statement was made some time ago by Ralph and Arthur Kemmerling, investigators the league. It was not denied by league directors today that they were aware of the statement. They simply wouldn't say anything, declaring that, in the absence of the Rev. Dr. J. Alvin Orr, who "didn't yet know about it," they would say not a word, Dr. Orr being the only official spokesman.

William H. Schuette, a director did say that the League would have a complete statement of the entire situation within a day or two. One director was told that King was missing again in this way:

Mr. King has checked out of his hotel, vanished in a cab and apparently has left town by train. Surely he hasn't left again without the league being aware of it?"

Schuette's reply was, "Oh, no."

The Kemmerlings are brothers and are among the first to have been employed by King as investigators. According to their statements, they knew that the Baum boulevard place had been "framed" and began to worry lest, when the case came to trial, they should become involved in a serious affair.

Therefore, each of them made a statement, as did Eugene Morgan, another investigator.

TO DROP CASES

That this statement will compel dropping of that case and the other cases in which King was to have been a witness apparently is little doubted anywhere. Whether, then, under the circumstances, King's conspiracy case against Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh, Jake Klein and Dopey Davis could be made to hold is another question, for King would have to be the chief witness.

Then, as regards the scores of cases, regardless of evidence and of the Kemmerlings' declaration that they actually made "buys" of liquor in all their own cases and that every one of their own cases would stand any test—their own statement of knowledge of a "frame-up" in other cases might be a deterrent to vigorous prosecution.

The League meeting last night drew the full board, instead of the committee which usually has had charge of affairs, although a couple of members were out of town. Not a member but looked depressed as, approaching midnight, they left the building.

Knowledge of the Kemmerlings' statement, which has not been an air-tight secret, seemingly had come to most of the members of the board for the first time.

The Doctor's Verdict

This case is critical. These colds are always dangerous and should never be neglected.

Doctors recommend hot Bulgarian Herb (Blood) Tea to break up a cold quickly, because it heats up the chilled blood stream, increases the circulation, and purges dangerous germs from the system.

RESCUERS DIG FOR MORE BODIES IN BLAST RUINS

Working in the plant have not reported in the check-up.

While children whimpered at the strange whim of fate which took them from their homes to crowded barrack-rooms, away from their parents, many of whom lie seriously injured in crowded hospital wards, state, county and city investigations went forward to determine the cause of the grim tragedy.

With the pumpers from Engine Companies No. 41 and 47, firemen under Battalion Chief Daniel Jones, threw hose lines into the cellar of the Pittsburgh Clippot plant and pumped out seven feet of water which had accumulated there. Workmen followed and it was expected that more bodies would be found.

A wreck crane on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad tracks adjoining the plant removed the wreckage from the sidings and allowed trucks to proceed to Wimmer's scrap yard where the refuse was dumped.

Charles E. Hillegas, superintendent Bureau of Highways and Sewers, reported to Mayor Kline this morning that all the streets in the vicinity of the explosion had been cleared of debris and broken glass. The danger of flooding the cellars makes it impossible to flush these streets. The Mayor instructed him to put the bureau's trucks at the disposal of residents there who desire to move household belongings.

Eighty men of the John Eichleay, Jr., Company, supervised by John Eichleay, Jr., and 200 others employed by the Philadelphia Company and the Pittsburgh Railways Company were engaged in the herculean task of moving hundreds of tons of twisted iron and debris from the ruins of the clay pot company's plant.

Mayor Kline and Police Supt. Walsh visited the scene this morning with officials of the Red Cross.

"My order to shoot looters stands," said Walsh.

Dynamite, resorted to during the night in the hope of removing debris from the pot company plant, was abandoned at dawn and the slow, tedious process of lifting the twisted mass piece by piece was resumed. It was here that 24 hours after the catastrophe the body of the Negro was found. Searchers expected to reach others soon.

WORK THROUGHOUT NIGHT

The disaster committee of the Pittsburgh Chapter, American Red Cross, composed of workers in every social organization in the city, worked ceaselessly throughout the night from their headquarters at 901 Ridge avenue. Police Superintendent Peter P. Walsh, who directed the work of every available policeman throughout the night, detailed patrolmen to accompany the workers and to continually circle through the devastated zone. No vandalism was reported.

Augustus K. Oliver, chairman of the Pittsburgh Red Cross, conferred with Mayor Charles H. Kline and was assured that the city will provide the temporary funds necessary for the relief work of the organization. The Red Cross issued a call for clothing for sufferers to be sent to their headquarters, 404 Chamber of Commerce Building.

RELIEF WORKER HURT

John Wise of Lincoln avenue, a laborer employed in one of the rescue squads digging into the debris of the wrecked clay pot factory, was injured this morning when a steel beam struck him on the head. He was removed to an emergency hospital.

All the facilities of the county were offered the recognized relief agencies operating in the blast zone, in a resolution adopted by the County Commissioners today.

The commissioners also tendered their services to the city Department of Public Works in removing debris.

PASTOR PERISHES

One of the victims of the blast, whose body lay unclaimed for 24 hours in the morgue, was today identified as the pastor of a flourishing Negro congregation.

John Moore, laborer, 1207 Epiphany street, when he took off his working clothes became Rev. John Moore, pastor and elder of the Church of God and Saints of Christ Church, 8 Lawson street. He was well known in the Hill district.

Identifying the body of his brother, John Hamison, 1132 Reedsdale street, in the morgue this morning, Andy Hamison stated that he and his brother were working in the same crew when the explosion wrecked the plant of the Pittsburgh Clay Pot Company. Andy was blown out of a window and escaped death, his painful but minor bruises being treated at a hospital.

J. C. Allison, expert on gas and tank construction, of the State Public Service Commission, arrived from Harrisburg this morning and at once went to the scene of the blast, seeking to learn the cause of the explosion.

A few more persons were taken to hospitals last night, but many were able to leave. Ten of the 25 left in the Allegheny General Hospital were reported in a serious condition; about the same number out of the 60 at the Presbyterian Hospital also were still in danger. At St. John's 35 were still in the hospital today.

It was 8:42 a. m. yesterday when the skies turned red. Three natural gas tanks whose capacities were in the millions stood alongside one another. On one there worked a dozen welders of the Riter-Conley Company, their electric machines eager to patch up, with metal, defects which had cropped up during the gas holder's idleness. Water and air were the only quantities in that tank, they say.

It has been suggested that a stray leak of gas found its way from a neighboring tank to the holder under repair and came in contact with the welding machines. But in the several investigations under way that story will be only one of a dozen. Experts, bothered time and again for the cause, admit their bewilderment.

CLOUDS OF FIRE RISE

But it came, that blast. Four sharp, quake-like blasts, the first, as a signal, followed after two seconds by three rapid, ominous reports, heard and felt in Beltzhoover and feared in Wilkinsburg and Hazelwood. Clouds of fire shot above the skyline of the city and disappeared into caravans of smoke that whisked a story of lost human cargo to the skies.

The white trail towards the clouds had hardly formed before the plain, frame houses of Manchester were so much waste; thousands of workers in the nearby factories were chasing to safety before an avalanche of falling debris; the one-man and one-woman shops were wiped out of existence—and bodies, some stilled, others gasping for life, awaited the vanguard to the god of destruction.

A former doughboy, shocked by shells in France, saw again the agony of Chateau-Thierry and the Argonne. "Bombs!" he cried. "Bombs! more bombs!" in a mad dash through the streets of Manchester.

WINDOWS SHATTERED

Glass told the story in the downtown district. From banks, office buildings, department stores and what-not the bits flew through the air until there must have been many who feared that the day had come when the earth was to be swallowed up and man and gas tanks were to be banished forever from its face.

And while glass played its song upon the downtown streets a more powerful quantity poured down upon the dead and injured as they lay in Manchester. Water, rushing from those exploded gas tanks, made as though to swallow its victims and when it had run its course streams from the hose of city firemen played mockingly on the very tanks whose contents had given way to all this.

In the wake of fireman came ambulances, nurses, doctors and young internes. And soon there were heedless ambulances carrying scorched workmen and bleeding pedestrians to hospitals—first to the nearby hospitals, then, as they became filled, to St. Joseph's on the South Side, Mercy in Soho and West Penn and St. Francis in East End.

Through the night the task of all-night vigil belonged to doctors and nurses. Through long hours they moved from cot to cot in crowded wards of filled hospitals. Today, while rescuers searched for more bodies, they slept.

POLICE LEND AID

Every agency of the city was thrown into search of the wreckage and relief of the homeless. Public Safety Director James M. Clark and Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh personally headed the force of every available policeman. Sheriff Robert H. Braun led a score or more deputies.

Detachments of the One Hundred and Seventy-sixth Field Artillery, commanded by Col. W. B. Dunlap, had their heavy tractors at work pulling away huge slabs of steel which blocks the streets.

All available crews from the County Department of Public Works, the Pittsburgh Railways Company, the Duquesne Light Company, the Bell Telephone Company were on duty, together with the construction and wrecking gangs of John Douglas, Jr., and John Eichlay, Jr.

Members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the American Legion threw their weight into the work, some acting as armed guards, others driving cars for relief workers and others serving as aides at relief stations and hospitals.

Salvation Army workers took time to supply coffee and doughnuts to the workers, as did Boy Scouts, besides helping find shelter for those whose homes were uninhabitable. In many houses, otherwise not damaged, the windows had been blown out and the gas shut off.

Hundreds of sightseers did little except get in the road of the workers.

Volunteer traffic directors, Boy Scouts, volunteer nurses, police, firemen, city and county employes and employes of industrial concerns all worked together in perfect harmony to relieve the suffering and bring order out of chaos.

this territory, is at work interviewing those in the vicinity. They are working under direction of Alfred Huriburt, vice president of the Equitable Company, who rushed here from the bedside of his dying mother in Philadelphia when news of the disaster was telegraphed him.

HOPE TO FIND CAUSE

Officials of the company hope to determine the cause when the debris has been removed and its engineers can examine the remains of the tank connections with its mains.

A. W. Robertson, president of the Philadelphia Company, will reach Pittsburgh Wednesday morning. He left the Pittsburgh Good Will Tour of Mississippi Valley cities Tuesday in company with Thomas Fitzgerald, vice president of the Philadelphia Company, and Edward G. Lang, director of the Pittsburgh Public Works Department.

Coroner W. J. MacGregor, with a corps of aides, hardly has begun his questioning of those in the vicinity to arrive at a cause for the tragedy, which took at least 23 lives and injured 465 persons. Likewise Hyman D. Hirsch, local representative of the Pennsylvania Public Service Commission, and the Department of Public Safety, have investigators at work seeking to determine the cause.

Why You Have Indigestion

How to Relieve It

When food enters your stomach, large quantities of acid-bearing gastric juice are at once secreted. If, as often happens, too much acid is present, the food soon becomes a sour, fermenting mass and may remain in the stomach several hours, causing great pain and distress.

Instant relief can be obtained in cases of this kind by taking a few Bi-acsia Tablets or a teaspoonful of the powder immediately after eating or whenever pain is felt. This quickly, safely and surely neutralizes excess acid, stops the fermentation, soothes and heals the inflamed stomach lining and at once restores painless, normal digestion. Get a 50 cent package of Bi-acsia—either tablets or powder—from any druggist today, use as directed and you can laugh at digestion troubles.

FORD, at the end of His Hardest Year, says: "NAPOLEON Was An Old Fool!"

"NAPOLEON kept at the war game one battle too long, and they got him," added Ford, in one of the talks which form the basis of the most interesting study of this interesting man ever published. It is an analysis of his personality by Allan L. Benson, the journalist whom Ford knows better and trusts more than any other writer.

Naturally, at a time so important in Ford's life—just as he puts his new car on the market and enters a financial battle such as no man ever entered before—all that he says is of such moment that it must be directed to the most intelligent and the most alert audience possible.

And, also naturally, Mr. Ford and Mr. Benson selected COSMOPOLITAN as the means of reaching that audience, because COSMOPOLITAN is a class magazine which sells more than a million and a half copies per month; sells them to more than a million and a half readers who have the highest average reading taste of any group of readers in the world.

The Left Hand of God

by

FANNIE HURST

HERE is a short story built on a theme so far from the beaten path that when Miss Hurst first submitted the idea in synopsis form, the editor of COSMOPOLITAN wrote to her: "I do not believe you or any writer could tell this story so that it could be published."

Nevertheless, Miss Hurst proceeded with the story, and when the editor read the completed manuscript, he wrote: "I must amend my original letter. I do not believe any other living writer could have told this story so that it could be published. You have done it, and in doing it, you have made it one of the most poignantly beautiful stories it ever has been my good fortune to read."

The Last Voyage of Odysseus

by

JOHN ERSKINE

YOU may have believed Plato's story of what happened when Odysseus returned from Troy, killed the suitors of his supposed widow, and resumed his place at the head of the household. Or, you may have believed the version that Homer gave which indicated that Penelope was in love with one of her suitors, and that her husband's return interfered with the romance.

John Erskine, who has delved so delightfully into the private lives of Helen of Troy and of Galahad, and who has told us what really happened in the Garden of Eden, has a version all his own. And what a version! It makes one of the most amusing—and perhaps one of the most instructive—stories any magazine ever published.

Home Wrecked, War Vet Hunts Mother

Nine years ago William Heath, now of Uniontown, but then a "buck private" in the A. E. F., slipped away from his outfit in a battered French village near Stenay, bluffed his way into a regimental P. C. and sent a cablegram informing his mother and sister that the armistice had found him safe and sound.

Last night Heath, trying in vain to hold back his tears, went from emergency hospital to dressing station along the "front lines" on the North Side seeking in vain for word of the same mother and sister.

Their home, at 1222 Reedsdale street, was an absolute wreck, a heap of bricks, smashed lumber, plaster and furniture, and sagging walls.

Police and firemen were waiting until morning to investigate the ruins. They kept Heath from slashing away the wreckage and entering. It would have been suicide, they told him.

Aided by several buddies of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Heath, after midnight, was continuing his round of hospitals, buoyed by the hope expressed by the police: "They're probably in some hospital or may be in some of those big private homes on Ridge Avenue or around there. Everybody there has someone in for the night."

WEST END HARD HIT BY BLAST SHOCK

The West End felt the force of the explosion probably more than any other parts of the city, other than the immediate vicinity of the disaster. Few plate glass windows in stores along South Main street withstood the blast and windows in many houses in other sections of the West End were broken.

No persons were reported seriously injured although many suffered cuts from flying glass. The West End is almost directly across the Ohio River from the scene of the explosion.

Among the buildings damaged in South Main street was the office of Alderman John A. Joyce, where all the windows were shattered. In the Perrysville avenue district considerable damage was done by the breaking of windows, especially in the vicinity of Wilson avenue.

VICTIM'S WATCH TIMES BLAST

In giving up his life in the explosion Charles R. Hardy, 54, structural iron foreman for Ritter-Conley Company, left behind a record of the time when the blast occurred.

A gold watch, found on his body, was stopped at 9:49 a. m. The watch was turned over to Mrs. Louis Hardy, the widow.

FIRST BODY NOT FATHER'S BUT SECOND IS

At the morgue yesterday, Ray Michaels, 917 Beech avenue, identified a victim of the explosion as his father, Charles M. Michaels, 45.

Removed to an undertaker's shop, the body was found to be tattooed with the letters "M. D."

Michaels returned the body and identified another as that of his father by means of a gold tooth and a finger ring.

BLAST FORCES HIM TO RUN

Attorney Martin Mihm experienced an odd effect of the explosion. He said that, walking along Lockhart street more than two miles from the tanks, he was forced into a run by the tremendous power of the blast.

CHARLES R. HOSMER, 76, CANADIAN BANKER, DIES

MONTREAL, Nov. 15.—Charles R. Hosmer, for many years identified with the development of the Canadian Pacific Railway and the Bank of Montreal, died here last night after a long illness. He was 76 years old.

CHECK SWINDLE METHODS TOLD

Credit heads from leading retail stores, managers of credit bureaus from many cities and city detectives and business men who attended last night's meeting of the members of the Retail Credit Men's Association in the Hotel Henry, were informed of methods used by bad check artists in swindling the public.

H. B. Cunningham, Pittsburgh manager of the Todd Company, was the principal speaker. He followed his talk by presenting the moving picture film "Checkmated."

RADIO IS BETTER WITH BATTERY POWER

More for your battery dollar

It's a mistake to buy a "B" battery merely because it is cheap. Such batteries soon give out and you have to buy new ones. When you buy the Eveready Layerbilt "B" Battery No. 486 your next battery purchase is a long way off—for Layerbilts will outlast any other Eveready, regardless of size—and every Eveready is famous for the long service it gives.

Eveready Layerbilts will supply pure, noiseless current for your radio set and give longer service for your money. That's because the Layerbilt is made by a patented, exclusive process. It is built up in layer construction that packs every available inch inside the case with active, electricity-producing materials. That is why it lasts so long. There's no question about it—the Layerbilt is the most economical battery you can buy. Back of every Eveready are the reputation and resources of the National Carbon Company, the largest electro-chemical battery organization in the world.

Weird Doings in Pitt Theater as Dark Web Spun By "The Spider" Is Untangled Strand By Strand

By GEORGE SEIBEL

A MURDER was committed on the stage of the Pitt Theater last night, but hard work on the part of the police and strategy by one of the principal performers caught the murderer before the performance of the "Spider" was concluded. Most of the credit for bringing the miscreant to justice belongs to Chatrand the Great, the well-known illusionist who used to be popular in Pittsburgh under the name of William Courtenay as an actor in our local stock company. Chatrand the Great, besides causing a cane to vanish and a bowl of goldfish to appear, has a remarkable mind-reading act, in which he is assisted by the masked Alexander, a boy suffering from amnesia. It was during the progress of this act that the shot was fired which snuffed out the life of one member of the audience, and caused the entire audience to be detained by the police while the investigation went on.

GEORGE SEIBEL

Both Chatrand and his assistant Alexander were strongly under suspicion, and the Inspector of Police took every precaution to prevent their collusion or escape. The Inspector was perhaps unduly harsh with one lady who had a baby at home, and objected to being detained during the examination, but an officer must do his duty when a crime has been committed. The application of third-degree methods to a poor French girl in the company, just because she had turned out the lights before the fatal shot rang out, also outraged some of the audience, but the circumstances probably justified the Inspector in his drastic action. At any rate, he deserves credit for at last listening to the clever ideas of Chatrand, who detected the criminal by his trap and also unearthed the evil machinations of the dope ring that has plied its traffic in our city under the very noses of the police. The locket with the Spider embossed upon it furnished the clue that finally has put an end to this nefarious traffic.

Chatrand's idea was quite worthy of that great master of illusions and magic. He arranged a spiritualistic seance right on the stage, caused phosphorescent hands to float in the air, and finally materialized the spirit of the murdered man. Of course the superstitious nature of the murderer was not equal to this strain, yet his detection was delayed because of a second shot, which shattered the glass front of the cabinet used in the seance. So still another device was necessary to unmask the guilty man, and reenacting the scene that led up to the murder brought about the revelation.

The Inspector apologized handsomely for having suspected the marvelous magician, who will repeat his astounding performance this evening. He follows right after Mack and La Rue, the skating marvels, and Lytell and Fant, the chocolate cake-eaters, and it is likely that the same harrowing crime will be committed again tonight and a squad of police will be in readiness to detain the patrons of the theater until the red-handed murderer is landed. But I believe no one will care to go home until the mystery has been solved, and even the lady with the baby is glad to stay and tell her anxious husband how it all turned out.

SAGE TEA KEEPS YOUR HAIR DARK

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks streaked, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the recipe at home or get from any drug store a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," for only 75 cents. This is merely the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients. Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully, besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, after another application or two, its natural color is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger.

HILARITY ROCKS THE DAVIS

What with Nan Halperin in diverting mimicry, Jack Goode and Hags Leighton in a comical blackface act, and Alexandria and Olsen with their gang in a farrago of fun, the vaudeville bill at the Davis this week causes gales of laughter to sweep through the house. From the simpering little girl who's just been photographed and hates everybody, to the jazzy b... that syncopates Mendelssohn, Miss Halperin amazes the audience by her lightning changes and amuses them by her facial comedy. Goode and Leighton, who "know more and more of less and less," furnish some new facts about Noah. Alexandria and Olsen enlist everybody in sight, including a black cat, and haven't room enough on the stage, moving over into the boxes. Besides these funsters there is Mrs. Wallace Reid (herself) in a dramatic little playlet called "Evidence" and Margaret Severn, who gives an amusing pantomime as the "Simple Maiden" while the Neal Sisters wear charming gowns and furnish musical byplay. Then there's Eddie Furman, who has a catchy patter song in Italian dialect, "What's a Gonna Be Next?" and is ably supported by Olive Evans. Dexterous foot-juggling by Van Cello completes a program which doesn't even omit "Me and My Shadow," and brings on Mrs. Wallace Reid again in the film feature, "The Satin Woman," showing the conflict between social ambition and mother love. A Billy Dooley comedy adds the slapstick to a bill which literally overflows with hilarity.

LARRY SEMON IN ALDINE

Larry Semon, who has left the screen for a brief frolic behind the vaudeville footlights, is one of the features of the bill in Loew's Aldine this week. Larry sings a bit and pokes fun at his ability as a movie comedian. A young fellow at a piano and a feminine singer help him in his act. His appearance is prefaced with the showing of a portion of his latest film. George Shelton and company, comprising 11 performers, offer an entertaining melange of dance, song and comedy. The comedian of the group presents his comedy in a Bobby Clark manner. Coogan and Casey entertain with a skit, "The Shrinking Violet," and Mays, Burt and Flynn jest and sing their way to a round or so of applause. Andreesons offer a vaudeville act. The photoplay feature is "The Rush Hour." Marie Prevost and Harrison Ford head the cast. Short film entertainment is on the bill.

Roosevelt Shown On Screen In Grand

"The Rough Riders," based on the exploits in Cuba of the noted regiment in which Theodore Roosevelt was a figure in the Spanish-American War, is the featured photoplay in the Grand this week. Of course, there is a romantic story woven into the historical atmosphere. Frank Hopper is seen as Theodore Roosevelt and Col. Fred Lindsey charactetrizes Leonard Wood. Mary Astor, Charles Farrell and Charles Emmett Mack portray the romantic leads. Noah Beery and George Bancroft provide the comedy relief. Mr. Hopper presents a remarkable physical likeness to the then Lieut. Col. Roosevelt. The picture is interesting and pleasing. Fay Gordon, on the stage, appears in a number of character songs which are well liked, the singer being peppy and of pleasing personality. The overture, "Zama," is another appreciated number. News pictures include scenes of the Pitt-Nebraska game.

"MY MARYLAND" PLEASES IN FINAL WEEK OPENER

"My Maryland" opened the fourth and final week of its engagement in the Alvin last night, the appealing operetta again attracting a pleased audience. The Sigmund Romberg music and Dorothy Donnelly story combine to make this attraction one of the most pleasing ever to be presented in this theater.

Men and Women -:- In Current Bills -:- In Our Theaters

William Courtenay, whose role in "The Spider," Pitt attraction, is that of a magician.

Dorothy Stone, feminine replica of her famous father, with whom she appears in "Criss Cross" in Nixon.

Lottice Howell, who has become a Pittsburgh favorite during the engagement of "My Maryland" in Alvin.

Fred Stone, the Christopher Cross of "Criss Cross," a musical comedy, if you must be told.

Fred Stone's "Criss Cross," In Nixon, Reveals Star as Eccentric Yankee Aviator

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

FRED STONE'S latest musical comedy, "Criss Cross," presented in the Nixon last night, was a jolly, meticulously clean and colorful entertainment. Give to "jolly" the meaning of genial rather than boisterous pleasantry. Endow "clean" with the significance of the cleanliness of the home circle—never a suggestive action nor a word with a double meaning. Interpret "colorful" in both its literary and literal sense, for the colors are equally atmospheric and prismatic. It is a veritable rainbow—and more—in the mixture and blending of brilliant and subdued shades of all hues, in costumes and scenes, which range from a Fairyland prologue to the exotic gorgeousness of the Orient in six scenes laid in Algeria in the second act.

The prologue is an indignation meeting of all Fairyland characters of juvenile fiction protesting because Fred Stone had decided to leave them out of his new show. Cinderella, in the person of Dorothy Stone, is certain she will be in it, since no musical comedy can be complete without her. And sure enough she is, for when the curtain rises on the first act she is revealed as an American girl pupil of a French school who had dreamed the Fairyland scene.

She really is a Cinderella, too, for she is being slighted because no funds have come from the rich American uncle, "diagnond king" in Algiers. He is dead and the musical comedy villain of the piece plots to marry her to one of his countrymen so he can control the diamond king's fortune, to which the Cinderella girl is the heir. Stone is an eccentric aviator, Christopher Cross, and just as the ceremony is being performed, he comes down from his airship on a rope ladder and snatches away the bride. The Prince Charming is an American in French military service in Algiers. After surmounting the usual musical comedy difficulties in the second act everything points to the inevitable "they lived happy ever after."

That is the skeleton on which is draped the embroidery of song and dance and specialties in which Stone is the comedy principal and in which Dorothy is the scintillating, dancing, romantic luminary, petite, chic and altogether adorable. The father and daughter appear in many scenes together, dancing in costumes of various nations and employing their typical steps. The Tiller dancing girls, 16 of them, also are prominent in the dancing, their every appearance winning applause in abundant measure. A troup of Arabian acrobats lend atmosphere to the Algerian scenes and perform tumbling feats in a whirlwind manner that astonishes with its rapidity.

Other principals in addition to the stars include Viola Gilette, who gives dignified charm to the role of the countess in charge of the French school; Roy Hoyer, the prince charming chap; Oscar Ragland, the scheming Algerian; Mark Truscott, John Lambert, Auguste Aurmant, Jack Dhannon, Lydia Scott and Ruth Farrar, all of whom gave a good account of themselves.

HARRIS OFFERS MUSIC REVUE

A takeoff on the big musical revues, titled "In the Conservatory," headlines the vaudeville in the Harris this week. This act is offered by a company of eight persons. A couple of boys, twins, and a smiling girl, billed as "Lindy," give an entertaining 15 minutes or so of dance and melody. Senna and Weber prove a laugh-provoking team, offering novelty steps and foolish chatter. Bud Carelli does a "Will Rogers," if you know what we mean, and gets the applause. Carr and Dowling talk nonsense and dance. Then there's an actor who impersonates great men of the past and present. The Keeler Sisters, acrobatics, complete the vaudeville bill. The photoplay feature is "Jake the Plumber." There's lots of comedy to it, but many of the "gags" are pretty "mossy" by this time. Jess De Vorska, heretofore little known to screen fans, is featured as Jake. An Aesop Fable film, a singing feature and news pictures also are on the bill.

SILK COMEDIAN IN GAYETY

Frank X. Silk's new Columbia burlesque, "Nothing But Girls," was presented in the Gayety yesterday with Silk in the principal comedy roles of the various sketches which alternated with singing and dancing numbers to make up the show. He appeared as a reluctant "artful dodger," in a sideshow episode, as an aviator's assistant, dumb policeman who wasn't so dumb and other characters. Adele Lewis, Elaine Beasley and Billie Lamont were the vocalists and dancers, Betty Earle appearing in dance specialties. A song novelty was "Dolls," by Miss Lamont and the dancing chorus, each girl guiding a large doll through steps of the dance. Earle Root, Charles Cole and J. Carlos were other comedians, the latter also appearing in dance specialties by Carlos and Rita.

"Moonlight Maids" Burlesque In Academy

"Moonlight Maids," this week's burlesque in the Academy, is presented by a company in which Billy Hagan has the leading comedy role. Anna Toebe made merry in a soubret part and danced. Grace Wallace made a good impression with her songs. Specialties were introduced by Ryan and More, Johnny Cook and Anna Toebe. The show opens with "Stepping Around," and the second act is devoted to a burlesque called "More Speed," in which scenes are laid in Hawaii and Egypt. "Pep" Bedford appeared in oriental specialties, Wee Wee and a company of eight girls did a stepping act which found favor.

WHITEY KAUFMAN COMES TO SANDERS' SATURDAY

Whitey Kaufman and his recording orchestra return to Pittsburgh for a one-night engagement in Sanders, on the Freeport highway, Aspinwall, Saturday night. This will be the first appearance of the Kaufman orchestra in Pittsburgh this season.

Pickford Appears On Screen In Penn

Mary Pickford has an emotional scene near the close of "My Best Girl," her new picture, featured in the Penn this week, and she carries it off well. But most of her work is as a comedienne, the picture, humorously and romantically dealing with the adventures of a stock girl in a large 5 and 10-cent store. Miss Pickford being the girl. Employed with her is the son of the owner of the store. Mary doesn't know that and they fall in love. There is lots of fun and some difficulty before the pathway to the altar is cleared. Charles Rogers plays the boy and makes him a likeable chap. Ted Weems and his orchestra, appearing on the stage for the second week, continue to please. The Irwin Sisters show skill in a couple of dancing numbers. The funny songs of Adler, Weil and Herman go well with the audience. The overture, with atmospheric stage setting representing a lamp and shade, is "The Story of the Lampshade." Dick Liebert presents an organ novelty, "On the Radio."

Sheridan Features Song and Dance Presentation

Members of Harry Kessler & Co. sing and dance entertainingly in an act, "Oh Uncle," which headlines the bill of vaudeville in the Sheridan Square the first three days of this week. "The Rush Hour," co-featuring Marie Prevost and Harrison Ford, is the screen feature. Ann Francis and Mr. Wally present a song and dance act, "Remnants." Miss Bobby Adams syncopates in song. Cecil and Van are seen in a novelty act, in which a canine performer is featured. Jack Copes and Cramer Hutton prove eccentric comedians. An organlogue, a film comedy and news pictures are on the bill.

COLLEGE COMEDIAN ON OLYMPIC SCREEN

The Vitaphone portion of the bill in the Olympic this week presents George Givet, heralded as "the original college comedian," and Nina Hinds and Pearl Leonard, "the California melody girls." The Vitaphone Symphony Orchestra plays "The Poet and Peasant Overture." The screen feature is "Shanghai Bound," starring Richard Dix. The star has the role of a captain of a Yangtse riverboat and the plot unfolds against the background of modern China and its warring factions. Mary Brian is the leading woman.

CAMERAPHONE SHOWS MARION DAVIES FILM

"The Fair Co-ed," starring Marion Davies, is the current attraction in the Cameraphone. There is real collegiate atmosphere to this production, which is a highly entertaining comedy drama. The cast includes 1,000 college students, among whom are numbered some of the leading athletes in the realm of collegiate sports. Johnny Mack Brown, star of the gridiron, is leading man. Short features complete the bill.

Miss Farrar

Applause that lasted for several minutes greeted Geraldine Farrar when she stepped onto Carnegie Music Hall stage last evening. It was the "standing room only" crowd that used to rush the galleries, but a devoted audience. The singer must have felt its good will, was encouraged to stage her come-back, and then proved that she had never gone.

We again heard a great singer and a greater musician, which is far more important. There was not a discordant feature in the concert. Miss Farrar enters and leaves the stage as if she were at court; while she stands before her audience she remains within the picture. From 20 songs and half a dozen encores she created a program that touched all phases of classic music. Her voice is no longer a grand opera voice; by keeping within the mezzavoce and by adroit control of breath, Miss Farrar brushed aside all difficulties and sang with utmost ease. Much of the color has gone but her voice is more even and her high notes far more agreeable than when we heard her before.

As a singing actress I cannot mention her equal. Far beneath the note, the phrase, the word, Geraldine Farrar senses a motif that prompts the composer; she can project that motif with historic and musical accuracy, and besides, by infinite charm, intrigues her audience into complete understanding of her purpose. When her program needed slight relief, she inflicted her songs with gesture that were as exquisite as the best Yvette Guilbert ever gave us. Her attitude toward great music is truly superb and we must be happy that she brought to our stage once again these masterpieces of Franz, Grieg, and Brahms that other singers blandly ignore. For the first time I have listened to some of these lieder sung in may be relieved by rational treatment—

it can not be rubbed away.

Are you one of those unfortunates who suffer with pains in your muscles and joints, commonly called rheumatism, making you miserable, less efficient, interfering with your working hours, ruining your sleep?

You may have tried many things without relief. Why not try S.S.S.? For more than 100 years it has been giving relief in thousands of cases, as testified to in unsolicited letters of gratitude.

"I suffered from rheumatism for a good many years. At times my joints would swell so, I couldn't walk. I tried almost everything. Went to Hot Springs . . . . then finally decided to try S.S.S. I took a course. In a short time the rheumatic pains entirely left me. I am now in perfect health, and want to add that I have tried all kinds of medicines but I think S.S.S. is the best." Earl C. Campbell, 115 West Main Street, Johnson City, Tennessee.

S.S.S. is purely vegetable. It is extracted from the fresh roots of medicinal plants and herbs and gives to Nature what she needs in building you up so that your system throws off the cause.

From youth to later years S.S.S. is a proven tonic—give it and take it when a tonic is indicated.

S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

The Dental Method

To Restore Clouded Teeth

To Color and to Firm Tender Gums

A New Method, Urged by Leading Dentists. Accept 10-Day Tube Free

THERE is now a way to quickly lighten clouded teeth. Tender gums, too, are firmed; given the healthy coral color that is necessary to set white teeth off.

New discoveries have been made. Tooth and gum troubles were found to come largely from a film coat that forms on teeth, absorbs food discolorations and breeds bacteria.

Run your tongue across your teeth and you'll feel a slippery coating. That is film. Old-type dentifrices won't successfully combat it. That's why your teeth have remained "off color" regardless of what you did.

Now, in a new-type dentifrice called Pepsodent, those conditions have been met—you can clear that film off. Teeth whiten amazingly. One's whole appearance thus is often quickly changed.

To prove those results, accept 10-day tube free. Or get full-size tube for few cents at your druggist. Do this in fairness to yourself.

May Move Gas Tanks From City Limits

The forced removal of all gas tanks, refineries and "similar hazardous structures" from the city limits may be one result of the explosion yesterday.

Immediately after approving unanimously an ordinance setting aside $100,000 for emergency relief measures, Council received a resolution from Harry A. Little asking the appointment of a committee to investigate the disaster and present legislation removing all similar structures from the city.

The resolution will be considered today by the Committee on Public Safety. It is the last of a series of efforts, over the past half score of years, to drive explosion hazards out of the heavily populated districts of Allegheny county.

The $100,000 ordinance was presented by Little, after a conference with Mayor Kline, who, after visiting the scene of the disaster, appeared personally before Council to urge its passage.

FOSTER ALLEGES WAR ON UNIONS

"The lockout of union miners in this community is a drive at the very heart of the union in the strategic Pennsylvania field," William Z. Foster, head of the Trade Union Educational League and leader of the last steel strike, said yesterday in a statement issued in connection with the conference of the American Federation of Labor, now in session here.

"If the open shop is established here the next points to be attacked will be the Illinois and anthracite districts," Mr. Foster said.

Regarding the meeting here Mr. Foster said: "The American Federation of Labor conference will do nothing to meet the crisis. The Federation officials, like the miners' leaders, are saturated with the same spirit of non-militancy."

English, and have been reconciled to the translation; but the singer was again master of the situation, for her diction has vastly improved since her opera days.

There is no reason why Miss Farrar should not soon replace Schumann-Heink as the missionary of good music. She has bewitching simplicity and arch sophistication; she compels her audience to listen and adore. She can remain one of the pillars of our concert stage.

It was well that Claude Gonvierre, the accompanist, played a group for piano solo, otherwise he might have passed unnoticed. I fear he improvised somewhat in the Brahms' Scherzo, but his Spanish music was interesting and well played.

'RUM KING' SCORES AT TRIAL

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

COURTHOUSE, CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 15.—George Remus created a mild sensation today in Criminal Court, where he is defending himself on the charge of murdering his wife, Imogene, when he leaped to his feet and engaged in a bitter verbal clash with attorneys for the state.

Remus, the once powerful "king of the bootleggers," is acting as co-counsel for the defense. He was a successful Chicago criminal lawyer before he went into the liquor racket and made millions.

The clash came during examination of a talesman for jury duty. Carl Bassler, assistant pro ecuter, asked the talesman:

"Do you know George Connors, a Remus lieutenant?"

Remus jumped to his feet, a flush mounting to his face and bald head.

"I object to that term, 'Remus' lieutenant'," he shouted. "He is my secretary."

"He is just what I say he is," hurled back Bassler.

Remus made a elaborate gesture to the court.

"Now, your honor, I object to this designation," he declared. "I think it is wholly uncalled for and designed to create a prejudicial impression of the defendant Remus."

Charles P. Taft, son of Chief Justice William Howard Taft, and the prosecutor of Remus in this trial, got to his feet and supported the contention of Bassler that Connors was a "lieutenant" and not a "secretary."

"Remus is not making a misstatement to the court," declared Remus.

"The reference to Mr. Connors' being referred to as a 'lieutenant' will be stricken from the record," ruled Judge Shook.

Remus sat down with a smile. He had won his point.

Remus had a very busy morning in court. Earlier he had filed a motion for a subpena designed to effect the recovery of records, papers and other of his belongings which he says are in the possession of Franklin L. Dodge, the man in the case, and members of the family of the slain Imogene Remus.

Six jurors, tentatively accepted, were in the jury box shortly before noon, and prospects were that it would take considerable time to obtain the jury.

$6,000,000 SUIT FILED ON FORDS

PONTIAC, Mich., Nov. 15.—(INS.)—More than 1,800 stockholders of the old Lincoln Motor Car Company, headed by Henry M. and Wilfred C. Leland, filed suit for approximately $6,000,000 against Henry and Edsel Ford in Circuit Court today. A forecast of this legal action was carried exclusively by International News Service several weeks ago.

The 1,800, all listed as plaintiffs in the case, charge that the Fords have failed to keep an agreement to reimburse them for the losses they suffered when the Lincoln Motor Company was purchased by Henry Ford at a receiver's sale for $3,000,000.

CHARGE BROKEN PROMISE

"The Fords," the declaration asserts, "having secured control of the assets and business of the Lincoln Motor Company by means of a promise and agreement to reimburse stockholders, and having failed to perform their agreement, they ought not to be permitted to retain in their hands the property so acquired."

The court is asked to require the Fords to repay the stockholders.

The declaration summarized asserts:

That due to industrial depression in 1920 there was a need for ready cash by the old Lincoln company.

That among other persons approached by the Lelands with reference to reorganization were the Fords.

That Henry and Edsel Ford agreed to co-ouerate with the Lelands in reorganization, with the understanding that the Lelands would refrain from seeking to interest capitalists elsewhere.

That it was agreed to endeavor to procure the sale of assets by a receiver, that Ford would purchase the assets, that the Fords would pay all creditors in full, would reimburse stockholders.

That the reorganized company was to be under the direction and control of the Lelands.

That Federal Judge Arthur J. Tuttle was told Ford had agreed to pay all just claims of creditors and that the Fords "might do something for certain stockholders."

That Judge Tuttle was not told about the agreement concerning stockholders because, the Fords explained, "the court is primarily interested in creditors."

That as a result of the promise of the Lelands not to try to interest other capitalists, Ford had no competition and was able to buy the plant for $8,000,000.

That after purchasing the plant in this manner the Fords failed to live up to their agreement.

After the sale the Lelands were placed in control temporarily. Later, however, they were ousted.

GENERAL LABOR ORGANIZATION PLANNED

Industrial labor in general is to be organized throughout Western Pennsylvania and millions in money assembled for the purpose.

That is said to be the keynote of the present conference of presidents of international organizations meeting in Pittsburgh to discuss the bituminous coal strike, with William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, presiding.

An outline of the plans will be presented to the conference this afternoon at its meeting in the Roosevelt Hotel, the committee having the subject in charge spending the entire morning drafting its report, while others, representing more than 3,000,000 men in organized labor, spent part of the time viewing the ruins of the North Side gas blast.

A committee headed by William Hutchison, of Indianapolis, president of the International Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, as James Wilson, president of the Pattern Makers' Union; Matthew Woll, president of the Photogravers' Union; Charles P. Howard, president of the International Typographical Union; Philip Murray, vice president of the United Mine Workers of America, and others completed their report before noon, embodying the high spots in dealing with the present coal strike and the effort to be made to organize industrial workers in general.

It was stated by some leaders that the whole force of the American Federation of Labor is to be concentrated in Western Pennsylvania and that its power industrially as well as politically is to be made felt throughout the state.

Charges that the Pennsylvania, Baltimore and Ohio and New York Central railroads were allied with various capitalistic interests in an effort to crush the miners' union in Western Pennsylvania, were made yesterday by the heads of the United Mine Workers of America at the opening session of the conference.

John L. Lewis and Phillip Murray, international president and vice president, attacked Gov. John S. Fisher in their talks. They upheld the administration of former Gov. Gifford Pinchot as an example of fair dealing with both capital and labor. Mr. Pinchot also spoke at the opening session, attended by more than 250 executives of national unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

The conference was called to devise means of supporting the 85,000 bituminous coal miners of Western and Central Pennsylvania in their strike to maintain the Jacksonville wage scale.

PITTSBURGH BARONESS MAY GAIN DIVORCE

Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

PARIS, Nov. 15.—The former Helen Tennyson, of Pittsburgh, may soon win her final freedom from the Baron Haroudin de Reinach-Werth whom she married twice and divorced once, and is now separated from. The Baron, member of a prominent French banking family, has applied to the Rota tribunal for a complete annulment of their marriage.

The former Pittsburgh girl declared that she would place no obstacles in the way of a final liquidation of their marital affairs. The baroness won a legal separation in New York, in 1925, but her attempt to obtain a divorce in Paris a few months later encountered legal difficulties.

The baroness has just arrived in Paris, where she learned of the latest move by the baron. She declared that her only purpose in coming to Paris was to regain her child whose custody she was granted by the New York courts. The child, she said, is now being held by relatives of the baron in central France.

The Pittsburgh girl married the baron in 1916, after meeting him in Washington while he was attached to the Tardieu missionh there. The baron had been previously married to Diana Morgan Hill, who committed suicide five months after their marriage. Helen and the baron went to France shortly after marrying but three years later she divorced him on the ground of misconduct. In 1920 the baron pleaded with her to forgive him.

"It was Armistice night that he begged me to remarry him," she said. "Because of the memories of the war work we did together, I yielded."

HUBBARD MEDAL GIVEN 'LINDY'

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—Hailing him as the "Spirit of America" and an "Apostle of Aeronautics," President Coolidge last night pinned the Hubbard Medal of the National Geographic Society on the breast of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh in the presence of one of the most distinguished audience ever assembled in the nation's capital.

The award of this coveted medal was a fitting climax to the world honors heaped on the shoulders of this youthful aviator during recent months for his daring lone flight from New York to Paris. It was made in a setting that could hardly be more appropriate.

CHEAPER DIVORCES BRING BIG INCREASE IN BRITAIN

LONDON, Nov. 15.—Extended facilities for divorce in Britain has led to the filing of 3,782 petitions in one year, the highest figure since 1909. Cheap divorces for poor couples led to an increase of 1,032 applications for "poor persons' certificates."

IT NEVER PAYS

By GILBERT ROGERS

Margie Leaves Sick Jerry In Mabel's Care, and Meets Mrs. Brooke

"IS HE—is he down town in the terrible place where he lives?"

"I've been trying to take care of him there," Margie answered. "He was delirious and didn't know me, you see. Now that his fever's gone, I'd rather he didn't know it was I who took care of him. You could tell him you had been there all along—couldn't you? And I've some things of mine there, and a bag. If you could get those for me. . . ."

The car was skimming down town. Mabel's fingers had sought and found Margie's, half protectively, half as if they asked protection. They did not speak. Both girls were thinking.

The car whirred up before the door of the dingy brownstone rooming house. Margie waited. She bit her lip, she looked at the faces of people passing, she tried to think of a hundred things, but it was no use. Only one picture filled her mind. Mabel up there with Jerry, letting him think she had come to his aid, brought him out of his fever, and Jerry smiling at her . . .

Tears blinded Margie's eyes. She wanted to jump out and run—run until she couldn't run any farther, away from this place and its torturing pictures.

Mabel came down the steps suddenly with Margie's bag. "Tell Robert to take you where you want. I—there's nothing I can say. Only I'm sorry—really. And thank you—you don't know how wonderful I think you are!"

Margie looked obstinately away. "I've got to keep my head," she said like a little prayer, "I've got to! Oh, I mustn't let myself go or I'll say things, hate her, the way she did me." She leaned forward and murmured the address of the apartment into the speaking tube.

The chauffeur touched his cap, shifted his gears. Mabel Farrington stood, not moving, watching as the car rolled away.

Beating its way through uptown traffic, half an hour later the car drew up at the familiar apartment house. Margie felt physically sick, as if she were going to have a breakdown. She felt alone and desperate. Life—just problem piled upon problem! What was she going to tell the girls? How was she going to explain her unexpected, mysterious absence?

Suddenly even the chance of managing the new branch of their beauty shop seemed uninteresting, unimportant.

"I guess I don't care what happens to me any more," Margie thought. She trudged the stairs slowly, and fitted her key into the lock.

Florence Clark came swiftly into the hallway, her eyes wide with excitement, her voice a whisper that carried as clearly as a shout.

"Margie—wherever have you been? Margie—"

"Oh, don't ask me now, Florence. I'm dead tired—I'll tell you everything later."

"But, Margie, there's someone here—she wants to see you!"

"To see me? Who?"

"I don't know. She's in there. She's worried about something."

As she spoke, the door of the little living room opened, and Carlotta Brooke stood on the threshold, facing Margie.

CHAPTER XXXVII.

EVEN in that first glance Margie read the distress and anxiety in Carlotta Brooke's face.

In her smart traveling clothes with her youthful figure, Mrs. Brooke looked like an illustration strayed from a fashion magazine. But her eyes, unfathomable and dark, had in them something else besides a fashionable pursuit of pleasure.

She came forward impulsively. She was as frank as ever in showing what she felt.

"I've been waiting ages for you—ages!"

Margie gave her a quiet, half sad scrutiny. She remembered that sullen uncomfortable week when Mrs. Brooke had turned on her, that final day when she had left Newport and Mrs. Brooke had not even wanted to say goodby. What could she be doing here—here?

The shabby hall carpet, the wooden Tyrolese clock that had survived its fashion, the ugly mantel of the living room encumbered with ormolu bric-a-brac . . . everywhere signs of things that were poor, unpleasing. And Carlotta Brooke, against that background, making the contrast still sharper. . . .

Florence Clark had vanished. From the room on the right, Margie thought she heard a faint sound of whispering. But in here she was alone with Carlotta.

"I had to see you," Mrs. Brooke said simply. "You see—there was no one else who—who could help me."

"Help you?"

"I'm in trouble, Margie. I'm in desperate trouble. Oh, it's Dan Shevlin I'm talking about, of course. Don't let's pretend—please don't let's pretend." She leaned over, caught Margie's hands.

But Margie said slowly, "I don't see how I could help you in anything. But if I could—do you really expect me to after what's happened?"

It was like Mrs. Brooke to be honest. "Oh, I was horrid to you. I admit it. You know why—I was jealous. And you—you're so much younger than I am. I couldn't bear seeing the way Dan looked at you. But really and truly, I never actually hated you. All the ti ne I was so unpleasant, I knew I was being unfair."

"Perhaps," said Margie, "but it isn't that alone. You sent—you sent Jerry Evesham to Shevlin's apartment the afternoon I was there. That's about the worst thing that anyone could have done . . ."

Into Mrs. Brooke's almost haggard eyes there burned a fleeting look of something hostile and ruthless.

"Why shouldn't I have done that? Wouldn't you—wouldn't any woman have done the same? That's why I wouldn't even say good-by to you—I guessed you were going to see Dan in New York. Oh, I knew you didn't like Dan—I didn't care about that. But he liked you. So I told that boy he'd probably find you there."

Margie gave a little bitter laugh. "Why do you think I went to see Dan Shevlin? Perhaps you ought to know . . . I went there to plead with him, to beg him not to show to Jerry Evesham that foolish, foolish letter I wrote."

Then suddenly Carlotta Brooke said in a voice of pleading: "Margie, don't hold it against me. Don't hold anything against me. I've been half out of my head these last months. What does it matter what I did? You can hate me if you want to. Only—only help me!"

The sincerity of that frank appeal touched Margie in spite of herself.

"I don't hate you, I guess I couldn't hate you, Carlotta. But I don't see how I could help you—ever."

Mrs. Brooke sighed. She said as if to herself in a weak little voice as she dabbed her eyes, "I'm very unhappy."

Margie watched her gravely. She felt strangely calm now, as if she were an older, experienced woman to whom a girl had come for advice. She understood Carlotta Brooke so clearly, with her feminine generosity and impulsive tenderness, her feminine ruthlessness and weakness—someone who lived by instinct, who wasn't very good perhaps, but who was lovable in spite of that.

Margie's mind flew for an instant to a small room down town where a sick boy smiled up into the eyes of his cousin. Love—it seemed to make people unhappy, often as not. She and Carlotta—after all there wasn't so much difference between them, between the way they felt now.

Mrs. Brooke was saying rapidly, feverishly:

"He came back. He seemed changed—worse than he'd ever been before to me. Then he told me he was through. Told me he was going to leave me. He means it, he really means it! I lost my head last night. I said things, wild things, and he was horrible to me—horrible! Margie, if he leaves me, I'll die, I'll really die."

"But," Margie protested, "how can I—what could I possibly do?"

"There's no one else for me to go to. No one else who knows everything—the way you do. If you . . . talked to him, told him what it would mean to me. Maybe he'd believe you. Maybe he wouldn't laugh at you the way he laughed at me."

"Talked to him!" Margie looked in amazement. "But Carlotta—what good on earth—I mean, you must know it wouldn't matter what anyone said to him."

Mrs. Brooke bit her lip. Well, you're making me say something I hate saying. It's—it's that you have some influence with him. Because he likes you. I know he likes you. You could probably get him to do anything you wanted."

"I wasn't able to stop him from showing that letter."

"Please help me, please do something!" Mrs. Brooke whispered tragically, her eyes looking hollower than before.

"I wish I could, but I don't see—I can't just ask him not to—not to go away, can I?"

"You can do something if you want to," said Mrs. Brooke somberly. "He's still there—he doesn't care what happens now. The servants are talking—it won't be long before everybody knows. He's up there, waiting for Adrian Martin to come back to Newport. When he's seen him, he says he's going to go. That made me desperate. And I thought of you—the only friend I have—and how badly I've treated you."

Margie began to see. It was not anything that she could do really which made Carlotta Brooke want her near, it was just for the sake of someone to confide in, someone to console her. It wasn't real help she wanted so much as it was sympathy, understanding.

As she thought that, an idea did come to her, an idea that she wondered not having thought of before.

"But—you could make him do anything you want. You could threaten to expose him, to tell the police he was a blackmailer—"

Mrs. Brooke shivered. "I wouldn't dare. I just wouldn't dare!"

"Well, I would!" said Margie almost defiantly.

"You?"

"Yes, I haven't anything to lose any more. . . ."

Carlotta Brooke considered swiftly. "Do that for me then, won't you?" she pleaded.

"Oh, but—," Margie protested, "just forcing him to come back, forcing him not to run away—you wouldn't want that!"

To Be Continued.

Best Way to Loosen Stubborn Cough

This home-made remedy is a wonder for quick results. Easily and cheaply made.

Here is a home-made syrup which millions of people have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It is cheap and simple, but very prompt in action. Under its healing, soothing influence, chest soreness goes, phlegm loosens, breathing becomes easier, tickling in throat stops and you get a good night's restful sleep. The usual throat and chest colds are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, hoarseness, throat tickle, bronchial asthma, or winter coughs.

To make this splendid cough syrup, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup and shake thoroughly. If you prefer, use clarified honey, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you get a full pint—a family supply—of much better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for three times the money. Keeps perfectly and children love it.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract and palatable guaiacol, known the world over for its prompt healing effect upon the membranes.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

SHORT TALKS BY THOUGHTFUL MOTHERS

A California (Long Beach) Mother speaks: "Only a mother who has passed through anxious hours of fear of croup can appreciate our feeling of gratitude toward Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. It stopped Junior's dreadful hoarse croupy cough the very first night he took it and it was a great relief to see him drop into a quiet sleep. Since then, we have many times proven its reliability for coughs and colds." Good also for whooping cough. Sold everywhere.

Spanish Oysters

Scald 12 oysters in their own liquor. Drain and then chop them fine. Wash well two quarts of fresh spinach and cook eight minutes in a cupful of boiling water. Drain, then chop fine, add the oysters, a tablespoonful of salt, a saltspoonful of pepper, two tablespoonsful of cream, one egg and the yolk of another. Melt a half pound of butter. Then fry in it two heaping tablespoonfuls of chopped onion and a bud of garlic. When done but not brown, mix with the spinach. Place two raw oysters in each buttered ramekin, then cover with the mixture, sprinkle a few crumbs on the top and bake until firm and a delicate brown on top. A few lumps of butter should be placed on the top of the crumbs before baking.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Wedding Bells Force Debs to Wings as Fall Brides Enter Spotlight of City's Social Stage

DEBUTANTES are being relegated to the wings of the social stage today and tomorrow. They were almost out of range of the social spotlight last night as well; because fall brides for a brief time will have the leading roles.

Quite the outstanding event of last evening was the large ball given by the William Christopher Robinsons of Ridge avenue in their Sewickley home, "Franklin Farms," for Sarah Cordelia Mellon, daughter of the R. B. Mellons, and Alan Magee Scaife, son of the James Verner Scaifes, whose wedding late tomorrow afternoon in the East Liberty Presbyterian Church will be one of the most notable events in the history of Pittsburgh society. When I said "large ball," I was not exaggerating; for no less than 250 invitations were sent out. And the guests were confined almost entirely to the younger set, including the young married folk.

Autumn flowers and roses and ferns decorated the spacious home, with the orchestra ensconced behind an embankment of ferns.

Many of the guests at the ball came directly from the Allegheny Country Club, where the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Maitland Alexander had given a dinner in honor of Mary Childs, debutante daughter of the James H. Childs of Albermarle street. At the dinner there were 120 guests.

Margery Townsend, daughter of Mrs. Charles C. Townsend of Wilkins avenue, will become the bride of Henry C. Fownes II, son of the Junior William C. Fownes, at a small, simple wedding this afternoon at 5:30 o'clock in the home of her mother. Performing the ceremony will be the Rev. Dr. Hugh Thomson Kerr of the Shadyside Presbyterian Church.

The bride will wear a simply made grown of white velvet, trimmed with rose point lace, and a veil of tulle, edged in rose point.

Louise Fownes, sister of Mr. Fownes, as her only attendant, will appear in peach crepe, trimmed with velvet of the same shade. The mother of the bride will wear Alice blue velvet, and the mother of the bridegroom, dark blue velvet. Robert G. Morrison will be Mr. Fownes' best man. A reception will follow. At the wedding dinner in the home only the bridal party, the immediate families and a few friends of the bride and bridegroom will be present.

Following a wedding trip in Europe, Mr. and Mrs. Fownes will be at home on Wilkins avenue.

Louise Fownes gave the rehearsal dinner last evening in the Oakmont Country Club.

Another rehearsal dinner given last night was held in the University Club with John McKelvy as host. And of course it was for the bridal party of Roberta Peebles Rhodes and Reginald G. Quatle, of Salisbury, Conn. Their wedding will also take place at 5:30 o'clock this afternoon.

A social event, not in honor of a bride-to-be, will be a tea Mrs. John K. Blair will give Friday afternoon in the home of her mother, Mrs. Clarence M. Wolff, of Beechwood boulevard. Mrs. Blair was a fall bride herself just a year ago this month when she was, as you know, Margaret Wolff.

When Mrs. Frederick C. Heinz gave a bridge luncheon for 40 guests at her home at Delafield and Waldheim roads, Aspinwall, this afternoon her little daughter, Barbara Lou, dressed as Cupid, distributed tally cards in the shape of hearts, which bore the announcement of the engagement of a sister-in-law of the hostess, Rebecca Heinz, and Dr. Harry Lytle. Miss Heinz is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Heinz, of Eastern avenue, Aspinwall. Dr. Lytle, who is a graduate of the school of dentistry, University of Pittsburgh, is a son of Joseph Lytle, of Second street, Aspinwall. A wedding date was not announced.

Mr. and Mrs. John Beachy will entertain at dinner tonight in Webster Hall supplementing the rehearsal for the wedding of Miss Mildred Slocum, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Slocum, of Squirrel Hill, and Clarence W. Smith, of Wilkinsburg, which will take place tomorrow, Saturday. Miss Carolyn Horn, of McKeesport, gave a luncheon in the Pittsburgh Athletic Club for Miss Slocum and that night Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lyons entertained at dinner. A number of other parties have been given for Miss Slocum.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Kathleen Parker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Parker, of Aspinwall, and James P. Maloney, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Maloney, of the East End. Both Mr. and Mrs. Maloney are graduates of the University of Pittsburgh. The bride is a member of the Delta Delta Delta sorority and Mr. Maloney, of the Phi Kappa fraternity.

Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Crawshaw, of North Jackson avenue, Bellevue, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Lillian Riefer, and William A. Schmidt, of this city, which was solemnized August 3 in Wheeling, W. Va., by the Rev. John A. Neil.

The marriage of Miss Goldie Constance Newman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Newman, of Princeton place, and Berger A. Lindstrom, son of Mrs. Paulina Lindstrom, of Edgewood, was solemnized Saturday morning at 11:30 o'clock in the Bethel Lutheran Church of Braddock by the Rev. Sigurd L. Hanson. The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Leonard Newman, wore shell pink chiffon and carried bride roses. Miss Pauline Lindstrom, sister of the bridegroom, as maid of honor, appeared in powder blue taffeta and her flowers were sweetheart roses. Carl Lundin was best man. After an extensive Eastern trip, Mr. and Mrs. Lindstrom will be at home in Lloyd avenue, Edgewood.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Louis Powelson, of Pointview street, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Rachel Helen Powelson, and Howard Hanna Crytzer, which was solemnized Saturday. Miss Ruth Powelson, sister of the bride, and Tolstoi Fabiani were the attendants. Mr. and Mrs. Crytzer are taking a motor trip.

Mrs. Henry Chalfant and her daughter, Eleanor, who will be maid of honor at Sarah Mellon's wedding, returned Sunday from New York. While in New York they were joined by Margaret Perkins, who will be one of Sarah's bridesmaids.

Mr. and Mrs. George Ferrara, of Murray avenue, announce the engagement of the daughter, Miss Roma Ferrara, to Michael J. Catalano, of the North Side.

Among those who were in New York over the week-end were Mrs. W. M. Jacoby, Mrs. J. Sidney Hammond and Mrs. A. Rex Flinn.

ASPINWALL WOMEN TO HOLD SHOWER OF BOOKS

A book shower will be held in conjunction with the meeting of the Aspinwall Woman's Club Thursday in the clubhouse. The school committee, of which Mrs. John Konstanzer is chairman, will be in charge for the afternoon and music will be furnished by the high school chorus and orchestra. Hostesses will be Mrs. E. A. Blaisdell, Mrs. A. Booth, Mrs. C. L. Brower, Mrs. E. E. Boyd, Mrs. Margaret Boyd, Mrs. W. S. Boyd, Mrs. W. T. Boyd, Mrs. Willis Boyle, Mrs. Harrie A. Bragg and Mrs. H. H. Bright.

Tonight the evening department of the club—the junior members—will entertain with a dance and card party in the club house as a benefit for the mortgage fund. Mrs. C. V. Keil, assisted by 20 members of the department, will have charge. This is the first in a series of benefits which the younger members will give and for which they have been divided into groups.

Civic Day was observed by the Swissvale Woman's Club yesterday at a meeting in the American Legion rooms. A thanksgiving hymn sung in assembly and a prayer by Mrs. J. A. Bailey opened the session, for which Mrs. Albert Oskin was chairman. Music was furnished by Mrs. D. T. Price and Mrs. C. T. Hewitt spoke on "Pending Legislation in Pennsylvania." The most unusual feature of the program, however, was a series of five-minute talks on civic improvements for Swissvale, Mrs. John Allison taking up the subject from the standpoint of scenic improvement; Mrs. W. N. Cunningham, from a sanitary viewpoint; Mrs. W. B. Vieta, on safety, and Mrs. Harry Fisher concluding with a talk on "What Constitutes Good Citizenship?" Hostesses were Mrs. Alexander Grier and Mrs. David Shelby.

Judson W. Jones, of Columbia University, will address the League of American Pen Women Thursday afternoon in the Woman's City Club. "Trends of Education That Lead to Short Story Writing" will be his subject. Tea will be served and there will be music.

About 200 guests were present yesterday at the meeting of the Mt. Lebanon Woman's Club, which was held in the Washington school and for which the program was presented by the school children. Mrs. John McKelvie, chairman for the day, lauded the work done in the two schools and paid a special tribute to the principal, Miss Tressa Yeager, whom she introduced. Mrs. James S. Huey, club president, presided. The development of education through the ages was shown in pageant form by a group of children in costume, education week was explained, and "Story Terrace," a playlet in which the children represented books, was given. There was also a program of musical numbers. A reception for the teachers of both the Washington and Lincoln schools followed.

The literary department of the Sewickley Valley Woman's Club will have charge of next week's meeting when the members will present a program on books under the department chairman, Mrs. James Lyall Stuart. "There is only one remedy for China and that is the complete modernization of the country. We must have the same economic development in China that is responsible for the prosperity of the United States," said Prof. Charles C. Batchelder, specialist in Oriental affairs, in his address before the Twentieth Century Club yesterday morning. After discussing the "fee system" with which the country is honeycombed and by means of which the equivalent of millions of dollars are absorbed in graft, Prof. Batchelder showed that foreign capital would have to be administered by foreigners, but if the nationalists succeed in driving out all foreigners this capital, so necessary for the upbuilding of a new China, will not be forthcoming. The fate of China is largely in the hands of young Chinese educated in the United States or in schools maintained by American missionaries, he said. He spoke of the three struggles going on in "the storm center of the Orient," the struggle between the war lords with whom there is no moral issue; the struggle between North and South China and the struggle against foreign control. American interests in China are twofold and two-fold only; the American missionaries (said to be the best single influence in China today), and the protection of American lives and property, the speaker stated.

SOUTH SIDE CHURCH HOLDS BAZAR

FRANK G. ALSTER WM. C. HIRT REV. RICHARD O. EISELE FREDERICK DIPPER

The three-day bazaar and supper of the German Evangelical Church of Birmingham, one of the South Side's oldest churches, having been erected in 1865, will begin tonight in the Birmingham Turner Hall, Jane street.

The old church is now almost inadequate to accommodate the large congregation. Some time ago a building fund for a new church was started, and it is expected that the proceeds from the bazaar of today, tomorrow and Thursday will give members of the church the financial foundation needed to begin work on the new structure.

William C. Hirt is president of the general committee in charge of the affair; Frank G. Alster is secretary and Frederick Dipper is treasurer. Rev. Richard O. Eisele, pastor of the church, is enthusiastic over the project.

Ruth Lavish in Praise Of Cal and Lindy

By RUTH ELDER

(Copyright, 1927, by New York Daily Mirror)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—I am the happiest girl in the world. I have met my two heroes—President Coolidge and Col. Lindbergh. The President is a darling—and Lindy is a wonder.

Six months ago, in my little home-town, I had dreams that some day I might walk into the White House and meet the President.

More than my dreams have come true. I met that retiring youth who found for aviation its place in the sky, the boy whom all the world calls "Lindy." My co-pilot, George Haldeman, was as happy as I was.

FLIGHT STILL SEEMS DREAM

The months have flown by so quickly since first I made plans to try to fly the Atlantic, that it all still seems a wonderful dream.

I was working in an office down in Lakeland, Fla., when Col. Lindbergh made his remarkable flight from New York to Paris.

It wasn't necessary that I work in an office, as my husband more than wonderfully provided for me. But I always wanted to do something. All my life I dreamed of going out into the business world and really accomplishing something.

My small-town existence never discouraged me. In fact, it lent additional encouragement to try to rise above my limited opportunities. Even before the news of Col. Lindbergh's flight thrilled the world I had taken lessons in flying. On week-ends I spent my savings in taking aviation lessons.

Even in my first flight I knew instantly I had found the type of work I loved and since those days I have learned that to succeed in flying one must love the game.

And on that memorable night Col. Lindbergh landed at Le Bourget, more than ever my ambitions to accomplish something worth while were crystallized into one.

I knew I would never be happy until I had flown the Atlantic, and because I have not succeeded in entirely crossing the ocean from New York to Paris, that is why Capt. Haldeman and I will try it again next year.

I have shaken hands with the most remarkable flier of our time, who inspired me to make my flight. I wanted to tell him so and thank him, but I thought it might be just a little bit out of place.

Strangely enough, President Coolidge and Col. Lindbergh are akin in many ways. Both have supreme poise. Their reticence, their modesty is a thing of charm.

OCEAN FLIERS AT LUNCHEON

During the luncheon in the White House today I sat at President Coolidge's right and Clarence Chamberlain sat at his left. Col. Lindbergh sat to the right of Mrs. Coolidge, who was seated opposite the President.

Also at the table were Commander Byrd, Capt. Brock, Schlee, Goebel, Levine, Lieut. Hegenberger and other fliers who have won their spurs over one of the oceans.

How happy I was to be among this little group of fearless men who had battled through unchartered kingdoms of the skies!

HOW TO KEEP WELL

by Royal S. Copeland M.D.
U.S. Senator from New York

Going to Kansas for the Complexion

AS I WRITE, I am on a train flying through Kansas. This state has vastly improved since last I crossed it. Its cultivated acres, fine buildings and well kept villages do credit to its progressive inhabitants.

DR COPELAND

In these fields and others like them are grown the cereals which give muscle and bone to the citizens of America. In the cities we could not live if the farmers went on strike. The prosperity of this section determines the welfare of the manufacturing centers. The farmers cannot buy if they do not sell. We are mutually dependent.

It is just the same with our bodies. Each part is dependent on all the other parts. The brain could not function unless the heart sent to it floods of rich blood. The blood would turn poison were it not filtered and purified by the kidneys.

When I see a fellow passenger of the fair sex watching her face so carefully, powdering her nose and adjusting her eyebrows, I wonder if she is giving equal care to all the rest of her body. Does she select her food as thoughtfully as she does her cosmetics.

What the complexion is depends more on the digestive and eliminative organs than it does on the face creams. Deep breathing and good blood will give the lips a better and richer color than any brand of rouge ever advertised.

As you know, I never rail on the use of cosmetic. I have no objection in the world to the harmless varieties used by our sisters. I don't blame any woman for looking her best. If paint and powder will assist, I'm for them.

What I do object to, however, is the danger of depending on artificial aids for the coloring which Nature should give and will give if she is helped a bit. The purpose of paint is to camouflage Nature, to give the appearance of abounding health.

You may use rouge and powder and have no shame about it. But if you use them to cover up the telltale story of your neglected body, you should be ashamed. If your white cheeks and pale lips are the result of undermined health from neglect of the simpler rules of hygiene, the use of cosmetics is a fraudulent act. You are seeking to deceive. You are concealing your frail health.

It may seem a far cry from Kansas farms to cosmetics, but after all it isn't. Sectional or geographical prosperity is dependent on the national well being. Rosy cheeks and brilliant eyes are dependent on the general health.

If you would have any part of a country well and happy, every other part must be well and happy. If you would have a striking complexion all your own, you must have good teeth, good digestion good elimination, a healthy body.

Economics and good health are founded on identical rules.

Business Girls Ideal Wives, Fay King's View

THE GIRL OF TODAY WOULD BE BORED WITH THE SILLY GOSSIP THAT THRILLED THE "GIBSON GIRL" AND MY DEAR— HE GAVE ME THE MOST ROMANTIC LOOK!
THE BUSINESS GIRL LEARNS TO MIND HER OWN BUSINESS!
HANDSOME YOUNG BOSSES ARE QUITE SAFE WITH THEIR PRETTY OFFICE GIRLS
FAY KING

By FAY KING.

CONTACT with the business world has not deadened a girl's sense of romance. It has regulated romance.

She doesn't thrill at every glance that a good looking man gives her. She doesn't build imaginary romances out of casual courtesy.

The business girl of today shares an office with a dozen good looking, well dressed, well mannered men. She treats them as they treat her, with respect and consideration.

They are to her just a part of the office routine, just as she is to them.

Of course, there are office romances. But they are not just the result of propinquity. They are because Fate happened to bring these two people, who would have fallen in love with each other anywhere, into the same office.

The bright, impersonal, smart little business miss of today would be bored by the silly romantic gossip of the sheltered girls of other days.

They were always giggling and secretly romancing about some handsome stranger.

The business girl learns to mind her own business. Her cat is not made up of gossip concerning the affairs of others. Nor does she pry and misinterpret friendships.

Romance comes to all girls sooner or later. When it does she is glad to marry and settle down. The good, sane, sense she has learned at work out in the world will help her in making a happy home. It will be free of petty insipidness and household perplexities.

The same good management that she learns in the office she can apply to the home. The husband of a girl who did not fall in love with any of the other men she met during her business career need not fear that their home will be broken up by a Don Juan.

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

"NECKING"—AND THE BLUSHLESS AGE

"NECKING," according to the District Attorney of Chicago, "should be reasonably clandestine."

Hurrah! And likewise, hear hear! We sympathize with him with all our heart. We, too, have suffered from embarrassment caused by this open display of blobby emotion, so poetically termed "necking." The very word gives us mal-de-mer.

Far be it from US to attempt to scale the Matterhorn or to stop the Necking Generation from expressing itself. Necking is the symbol of the Blushless Age. But there are SO MANY things in the world that ought to be clandestine!

HELEN ROWLAND

Corned beef and cabbage, for instance, should be clandestine. And clothes-lines and incinerators and family fights and moth-balls.

A cabbage may have the right to express itself even as you and I—but not under your neighbor's drawing-room windows.

You do not object to your neighbor hanging his purple pajamas and other intimate garments out of a clothes-line. But you are peeved when he hangs them right in full view of your front piazza.

"Necking" may no longer be regarded as sinful or immoral. It may be as pure as an incinerator, as innocent as a spring onion, as natural as a cabbage and as beautiful as all three. But, like a tooth-brush or a napkin, it should be a purely PERSONAL affair.

People who MUST "neck," like people who must use a tooth-pick, should keep it a dark secret. You have no right, in well-bred society, to spoil other people's appetites for food—or love.

And this open-faced "necking" in restaurants and taxicabs does wreck the illusions and spoil the appetite for love. It has taken all the thrills out of sentiment and all the kick out of romance for most of us. It is like living your whole life with the shades pulled up!

"Necking" is to love-making what the custard pie comedies are to drama.

Necking is not unlawful—it is simply unbeautiful.

Necking is not criminal. It is ten times worse. It is BAD TASTE!

"Necking" is the modern BURLESQUE on love-making! How any girl can get a "kick" out of it is a mystery. But if you must indulge in it, do get behind a potted palm and be CLANDESTINE about it! There are still lots of us who believe in poetic love—and Santa Claus!

Love's Embers

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife" By Adele Garrison

Good Old Lillian Underwood Gives Madge a Word of Cheer and a Loyal Promise.

AT MY announcement that I had an appointment with Philip Veritzen at 11 o'clock, Lillian gave a low, prolonged and aggravating whistle. As vividly as if television already had become a part of the ordinary telephone service, I visualized the amused, delicately mocking expression which I knew was on her face.

"The great impresario certainly is showing a gratifying devotion—to his work," she drawled with a provoking pause before the last three words. "Lands from a boat one minute, and goes into conference with his historical research authority the next. But you're not going to let him take up all of your time, are you? When are you coming up here?"

"That's what I called you up to find out—if you'll give me a chance," I retorted acridly.

"Touche!" she acknowledged with a little laugh. "Go ahead. I'll promise not to tease a bit more."

"Have you anything planned for today?" I asked.

"Nothing but work," she said. "I'm going to be right here within arm's length of the telephone every minute. I'm even going to have my meals sent up. So you see, you can get me at any time."

"Suppose," I said slowly, "that I wanted literally to 'get' you and take you away from your work for a while. Could you leave it?"

There was an instant's silence, as eloquent on Lillian's part as a gasp of dismayed negation would have been for a less poised woman. Then she said briskly:

"Let me get you straight. Do you mean that you may need me today?"

"That is exactly what I mean," I returned, "but if you have—"

"Nothing that I cannot leave for you, my dear, at any time," she said, her voice brimming with the loyalty and affection which she always has accorded me. "And you know I'm what is known in the profession as a 'lightning change.' So you may count upon my being at the front door waiting for your word within 10 minutes of your telephoning me."

"I haven't words to tell you how many kinds of a darling you are," I said, "and I hope I shall not have to trespass on your kindness. In any event, I'll telephone you before I come over to the hotel."

"Just cut out that talk about 'trespassing,'" she commanded.

"Thank you so much," I said hastily, and hung up the receiver with my face flaming.

I hated to admit even to myself that I might need her. But ever since my wirelessed summons from Philip Veritzen to meet him at his offices upon this Sunday morning of his return from Europe a queer little resentment of something—difficult—if not unpleasant—had haunted me.

In the first place, I did not like the time of this appointment—upon a Sunday morning when the offices usually teeming with life and activity would be deserted. Not that I was in the least afraid of Philip Veritzen. I agreed with an amused comment of Lillian's, "Phil is as docile as a baby lamb if anybody knows how to manage him." But I was in no mood to be compelled to "manage" any man, and it was with something nearly akin to belligerency that, as I neared the big office building, I saw the Veritzen limousine drawing up to the curb.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

Wednesday, November 16

ALTHOUGH the Major Fortune, Jupiter, rules by its excellent angle to the Sun on this day, bringing his benignant expanding, productive and life-giving impulse to all mundane affairs, with increase of wordly goods and honors, yet an unfriendly relation between the luminaries and a menacing figure of Neptune may somewhat nullify complete progress and satisfaction. It would be wise to avoid subtlety, craft and chaotic conditions, especially as affecting employment.

Those whose birthday it is are at the threshold of a year of expansion, growth, benefits and good fortune, but they should safeguard employment and fortify against craft, subtlety and intrigue. A child born on this day should have many splendid qualities and opportunities for success, with possible honors and recognition, but it may also be subject to intrigue and duplicity. It would succeed better on its own account than in employment.

ACTRESS TELLS SECRET

Tells How to Darken Gray Hair With a Home-Made Mixture

Jaicey Williams, the well-known American actress, recently made the following statement about gray hair, and how to darken it, with a home-made mixture:

"Any one can prepare a simple mixture at home that will gradually darken gray, streaked or faded hair, and make it soft and glossy. To a half-pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and ¼ ounce of glycerine.

The ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look forty years younger. It does not [illegible] the scalp is not sticky or greasy [illegible]."

AGAINST DETROIT COUGARS IN NATIONAL PROFESSIONAL HOCKEY LEAGUE

Here is the hockey squad that will represent Pittsburgh in the National League this season, and will meet the Detroit Cougars in the opening game of the championship race at Duquesne Garden this evening. Left to right: Back row — Tex White, Hib Milks, Johnny McKinnon, Trainer Jack Campbell, Roger Smith, Harold Darragh, Mickey McGuire and Roy Worters. Front row — Herb Drury, Charley Langlois, Ty Arbour, President Horace Henry Townsend, Manager Odie Cleghorn, Duke McCurry and Harold Cotton.

By CARL W. SHATTO.

ARMED to the teeth with speed and power and skill, Pittsburgh's Pirates of the ice tonight will set sail on the turbulent sea of National League competition, in quest of adventure and glory and the gold of a league championship. Adventure the Pirates are certain to encounter in plenty; in glory they probably will share, but of gold—well, the title gold is not to be taken before a long, perilous journey, and there are nine other murderous crews waiting to cut them down along the way.

Skipper Odie Cleghorn's crew will be put to its first test at 8:30 o'clock tonight at Duquesne Garden when the eager Cougars of Detroit help the Pirates usher in the 1927-28 campaign at the Craig street arena. In the matter of "mid-season form" the condition of the players is exceeded only by the interest of the fans, and a record inaugural game crowd is expected to attend. That the occasion may not want for an "official" touch, Mayor Kline will attend and throw out the puck to start the game.

COUGARS DRILL HERE

The Detroit skaters arrived here this morning and worked out at the Garden shortly before noon. Player exchanges and additional seasoning have served to make the Cougar sextet a dangerous threat, and they showed plenty of confidence and dash as they drilled today.

In the matter of improvement, though, it is doubtful if they can match the Pirates. Every member of the present Corsair squad saw action in Pittsburgh livery last season; with few exceptions, the Pirates are young, coming up rather than slipping; their teamwork is improved by a beter knowledge of each other's style of play, and they have lost such nervousness as is associated with newcomers to the ranks. Whether or not they are sufficiently improved to land a money position in the league scramble is a question that scores of league battles between now and next April alone can answer.

In order that any last-minute congestion may be averted, Garden officials have arranged to open the doors at 7 o'clock. Colean and Ake, comedy skaters, have been engaged

Amateur Cleanup Sought

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—There will be no "paid amateurs" and no secret high finance in connection with the conducting of athletic meets after this month, if the proposal of Gustavus T. Kirby is passed at the national convention of the Amateur Athletic Union in Cincinnati, on Monday and Tuesday of next week. Kirby's suggested legislation is the first attempt on the part of the A. A. U. to delve into the financial end of meet promotion.

Kirby, acting on behalf of the Intercollegiate A. A. A. A., has proposed an amendment to the A. A. U.'s bylaws asking that games managers be required to present a sworn affidavit giving in detail all receipts and disbursments relative to sanctioned meets.

The matter was brought to a head, according to Kirby, in a discussion which arose at an I. C. 4-A meeting. General disgust over the manner in which visiting foreign athletes had been exploited provoked the delegates to frame the proposal, which was worded by James A. Taylor. In discussing his proposition, Kirby said:

"It is time some check was made on those organizations which are capitalizing foreign athletes who come here in good standing as amateurs. This method is the surest way to do it, and I feel quite confident that the proposal will be carried. There is no reason why it should not pass."

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

FOOTBALL fans of the Pittsburgh district who got the biggest kick of the season out of the thrilling gridiron debate between Pitt and Nebraska at the Stadium here Saturday, will be pleased to learn that there is a strong possibility of the Cornhuskers' being kept on the Panther schedule.

The Westerners will not play here next season, as the two-year contract calls for Pitt to appear in Lincoln in 1928, but it is strongly probable that a new home-and-home agreement will be drawn up whereby the Nebraskans will be booked to perform here again in 1929.

AMONG the many discussions heard among the fans after the Nebraska thriller were some expressions of regret that the big crowd present at the Pitt-W. & J. game a week earlier, instead of the much smaller gathering present last Saturday, had not been privileged to witness such a spectacle.

Perfectly played football games with 0-to-0 scores may be satisfying to exacting critics, but there is no question that the "crowd" always wants a scoring game, just as the average baseball gathering wants to see some hitting and scoring.

If that Pitt-W. & J. crowd had been given a sensational see-saw exhibition like that of last Saturday the rooters of both sides would have been hoarse for a week and the game would have been talked about for months.

HOWEVER, those who figure that football would have been helped more here and that the drawing powers of Pitt's future schedules would have been increased if the game of many thrills had been played on November 5 instead of on November 12, may be overlooking the possibility that in the long run Pitt's interests and the football cause here may be best served by the way the two games "broke."

For the Pitt-W. & J. game needs nothing to help it. It is a local classic that every fan in this territory wants to see each year, and no matter what the score may be one season—0-to-0 or otherwise, it is certain to draw a big crowd again the following campaign.

BUT with Nebraska it is different. That's the game that needed the advertising and building-up for the years to come, and after the two sensational games they played here in 1921 and 1927, their next coming will be awaited with an eagerness that can only result in a huge turn-

DELANEY OFFERS TO REPLACE SHARKEY

Delaney was notified by his manager, Pete Reilly, today that he would replace Sharkey, providing Heeney was willing to meet the former light heavyweight champion. If Heeney was unwilling, Delaney said, the Bridgeport boxer will meet some other likely opponent on Friday's card.

SPEAKING of SPORTS

HARRY KECK
SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS EDITOR

DICK GUY, former local sports editor and long interested in independent and league baseball as a club-owner, manager and scout, as well as league organizer, does not agree with the opinion often expressed in recent years that there is a scarcity of big league talent in the minor leagues these days, as compared with former years.

"There are just as many good players in the minor leagues and on the sandlots now as there ever were," Guy said the other day during a fanning bee. "The real truth of the matter is that not so many of them are getting their chance to make good in the big show.

"Back in the olden days, scouts did not hesitate to recommend players for trials to the extent that they do now. Prices have gone up and, with a few exceptions, scouts are in deadly fear of being held accountable for the loss of large sums by their employers in the event players recommended do not make good. The result is that whenever they are in doubt they'd rather let the player go than take th chance of being stuck with him."

BILLY MURRAY, long-time baseball manager and scout and himself a former player, was among those in the talkfast, and he agreed with Guy. He told how he and another baseball man passed up Honus Wagner at Paterson, N. J., years ago. They went down from New England to look him over and were not impressed with his work. Honus had a big day at bat and in the field, but Murray and his partner were sticklers for form and didn't shine up to Wagner's bow-legged shortstopping and widespread stance at the plate.

"It seemed as if he came up with more dirt than ball in his hand every time he reached over to get a grounder," Murray said, "and I didn't

RICKARD, GENE, JACK POT BOILS

International News Service Special Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—On the eve of the Battle of Newark, the vocal lines of Jack Dempsey and Jack Kearns are still holding firmly and Tex Rickard, threatened now with a flank movement by Gene Tunney, today is arming himself on all legal fronts.

Tunney, who is merely an interested spectator in the Dempsey-Kearns skirmish, came in from Speculator last night and conferred with Billy Gibson and Bill McCabe on his plans to enlarge the field of promoters for his ring activities next season.

Gene has established temporary headquarters at the Biltmore and after

THROUGH the SPORTLENS by HARVEY BOYLE

THE thrills which bubbled and sprayed the Pitt-Nebraska football game, making it stand out as the classic of a decade, furnished illumination to a problem in the collegiate game, we mean the much discussed practice of one team scouting a prospective foe. It was quite obvious that prior to the Pitt-Nebraska game there had been but little scouting. And perhaps this was one reason why the game abounded in so many thrills that spectators are still gasping. Thus, aside from the morality of scouting, or a consideration of the ethic involved, a lack of scouting here was shown to produce football at its best. This utilitarian viewpoint of the scouting problem, developing that little or no scouting makes the game more interesting and more fascinating, may be the one that eventually will lead to a general agreement among the big schools to do away with scouting.

HARVEY BOYLE.

NEBRASKA, obviously, knew little of the Panthers' mode of attack, and there were times when Pitt, too, seemed to know little of the weaknesses and strength of Nebraska. Against this condition in a game filled with thrills from the first moment to the closing whistle contrast the struggle between two great teams, Pitt and Wash-Jeff. In that Pitt-W. & J. game, which was not without its thrills, of course, but lacking the drama apparent in the Pitt-Nebraska game, the Panthers knew, seemingly, every move the Presidents contemplated and the Presidents in turn knew every formation and gesture of the Panthers. And each side played as if the other had little new to show.

HOW much better it might have been if neither Pitt nor W. & J. had heard from a scout a word about the other's mode of attack and defense. For one thing, the game would have been livelier, more uncertain, and for another thing, the players

BLUFFITES OFFERED THREE TILTS

By JESS CARVER.

DUQUESNE UNIVERSITY will follow Carnegie Tech westward for a post-season football game, it was learned today, tackling either the University of Denver at Denver, December 3, or playing a Southern California school, the name of which was not given out, on Christmas Day. The Dukes also have been invited to play in Chattanooga and in San Antonio, Tex.

The Duquesne officials will close for or reject the Denver proposition tomorrow at the latest. Coach Elmer Layden is in favor of the Colorado game and is not keen on making the western trip this year. The university officials are said to be in favor of the Dukes making the trip, and official sanction is certain to be given the game if it is arranged.

Athletic Manager Holahan, who was in Chicago Sunday and Monday dickering with the far western representatives, returned to the city today and immediately got in touch with Denver. Terms were made by Holahan and tentatively accepted by the Denver officials this morning via long-distance telephone. Manager Holahan expects the final negotiations to be completed late tonight or early tomorrow morning.

MAY TAKE DENVER DATE

Denver is coached by Fred Dawson who coached Nebraska prior to the advent there of Ernst Bearg, the present mentor. Dawson was coach of the 1921 Cornhusker eleven that defeated Pitt here. The Denver eleven has enjoyed a fairly successful season and sought, through a local representative, a Pittsburgh or tristate district opponent for a post-season game. It is said that an effort was made to get Carnegie Tech to stop off at Denver on the way back from Oregon to meet the Colorado team, but the Tartans turned down the proposition.

In the event the game is accepted, the Dukes will leave Pittsburgh November 30, arriving in Denver December 2, and will return directly after the game.

If Pitt receives the Tournament of Roses bid and the Dukes go to Denver, it will mark the first time in history that all three local college football teams have engaged in post-season contests in the West and will provide a unique situation. It is seldom that three teams from one city are found engaged in feature games of intersectional nature and importance.

DETROIT TEAM STRONG

Good enough to hold Army to a single touchdown and to keep Notre Dame from running wild in the opening game of the season, possessing one of the cleverest backs in the Middle West and boasting a powerful line and, above all, Notre Dame coached and inspired, is the sort of a foe on the books for Carnegie Tech at Forbes Field Saturday afternoon. The team is Detroit University's varsity eleven, and it is being primed for this game as it was primed for the Army encounter.

Gus Dorias, who has been at the head of football at Detroit for the past six or seven years, lost the coaching job at Notre Dame when he failed to call the flip of a coin, and lost the job to Knute Rockne, who knew when heads and when tails was going to face up. Dorias went to Detroit, took over the reins at the Michigan institution and has been turning out tough football teams ever since.

His team this year is especially good, despite defeats at the hands of Notre Dame, Army and Toledo University. The line, under the tutelage of Bud Boeringer, last season all-American center at Notre Dame, has developed wonderfully since the early games and at present, is rated as one of the best in the Middle West—even being compared to forward walls of Big Ten schools.

The Detroit attack is built around Lloyd Brazill, a sophomore halfback, who is a fine kicker and passer and ball carrier. He made life miserable for the then undefeated Haskell Indians and for Ralph Young's Michigan State eleven.

The Tartan season has been far from a success. Only one major has been won, that being the West Vir-

Dartmouth Soph Gains Mile for Green Eleven

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 15.—(AP.)—Al Masters, sophomore halfback, gained more than a mile of ground for Dartmouth's football team this year. Playing his first year of intercollegiate football, he covered a total of 1,934 yards of enemy territory in eight games.

He ran back 36 kicks for a total of 709½ yards, threw 31 successful forward passes for a total of 462 yards, and covered 199 yards himself on the receiving end of passes.

He averaged 15 2-3 yards in running back kicks and 6 4-5 yards per play from scrimmage, or 8¾ yards a game.

Team Long Unscored On

PORTSMOUTH, Va., Nov. 15.—(AP.)—Woodrow Wilson High School of Portsmouth is believed to have established a long-distance record by holding opponents without a score in 18 consecutive football games. The team has not been scored on since the 1925 season.

NOTES of the BOXERS

STANLEY SIMMONS of Lawrenceville and Dick Gibbons of Mc-Keesport, light-heavyweights, have been matched for the semi-final of six rounds to the Tommy Evans-Andy Tonzo battle at Motorsports Thursday night. Gibbons has had only two bouts as a professional and has scored a knockout in each.

Sammy Mandell, lightweight champion, meets Jesse Nixon of Joplin, in a non-title 10-round match in Chicago tonight.

Tommy Madden is supposed to call Akin with the Cincinnatus Riverfront a visit.

Ray Bisette, football middleweight, fought on the card out at the Logan Hall last night. Tommy has been fighting much longer than Bisette and his greater experience likely told the tale.

Old Jack Britton, former welterweight champion, referred in the main of many former triumphs, Carbin, O., last night in referring Jimmy Jones of Youngstown in 10 rounds.

The card at Motor Square Garden next Monday night will consist of a 15-round wind-up, two eight-rounders and a preliminary. Johnny Shelly and Tommy Crowley will be the headliners in their melting return bout. Lynn Jones, Negro welterweight of Johnstown, hears Jack Horowitz of Los Angeles and Charlotte in one of the eight-round battles and the other will be between Peter Gallagher of the South Side and C. S. Carmichael of New Kensington. Mario Sirio of Oakland will box Mike Hart of New Kensington in the opener.

TECH

this contest. Pitt, Wash-Jeff, and New York have defeated the Plebs. This game Saturday is liable to upset Red Tech on the short end of the score if they do not play the best football of which they are capable.

Pitt's Panthers come out of the Nebraska game in good physical shape. The boys were somewhat bruised and sore, but there were no serious injuries, even in the case of little Jimmy Hagan, who's injured shoulder was bumped pretty soundly in the third period. Light workouts today and tomorrow will be on the Pitt program as preparation for the closing game of the season with Penn State Thanksgiving Day opens.

By a week from Thursday, Coach Sutherland is confident of having one or both of his regular quarterbacks on the job, Edwards and Fisher. In this event, he will be able to divide the fullbacking against the Lions between Booth and Parkinson. By using Tom at quarter against both Wash-Jeff and Nebraska, the Panther mentor was unable to take advantage of Pug's fine line bucking, and lost a lot of needed power in both games.

With Edwards or Fisher back in harness, it is Pitt's hope to break up Penn State's aerial attack and to spring a running attack that will crush the fair Penn State line. This attack, to be led by Welch, Booth, Parkinson and Hagan, will certainly be as good as any State has met this year, even considering New York's.

Duquesne's Dukes began work yesterday for the season's finale against Ashland College of Ohio on Saturday, to be played at Ashland. The Dukes are through as a home attraction, having closed the local schedule with the Waynesburg game of last week.

PANTHERS PICKED BY 'ANGELES SCRIBES

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 15.—(AP.)—Sports writers of Southern California have started the annual forecasts on opponents in the Tournament of Roses football game at Pasadena New Year's Day.

One writer announced that Washington and Jefferson would represent the East and picked Pittsburgh University as an alternate. Another made Pittsburgh first choice. The tournament committee is maintaining its usual silence, the custom being to await the end of the season before making the selections.

The seating capacity of the Rose Bowl has been enlarged to 72,000, under a contract calling for accommodations for 90,000 persons in 1930.

FOUR OTHER GAMES CARDED

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—(AP.)—Winter will arrive officially in the New York sporting world and four other cities of the National Hockey League tonight with the opening of the professional circuit for the season of 1928.

Both the International and American divisions of the circuit will swing into action that will carry through into March, when the winners of first and second places in the two sections battle for the Stanley cup, emblem of the world professional hockey championship. Ten teams make up the circuit that invaded New York for the first time three years ago.

In games tonight the New York Americans will entertain the Montreal Canadiens at Madison Square Garden, while the New York Rangers meet Toronto Maple Leafs at Toronto.

With the Sandlot Gridders

By TOM BIRKS.

McChesneytown seems to have the best independent gridiron outfit in the district this season. This is the opinion of many well-posted fans that saw the McClintic machine in action Sunday against Christy Park. True, Manager Dorsey had to rearrange his backfield when Lowdy Adams reported on the sick list, but it is hardly possible that the old Pleasure star would have changed that score any.

McGinnis and the Johnson boys sure have a variety of plays and get opposing players all twisted up wondering where the ball is. Yes, when the McChesneytown backfield starts maneuvering that ball around it looks as if the fine hand of Wally Steffen is directing the plays.

Costrella, who starred on the Clairton Indians last season and was picked all-star by the critics, looks just as good this season. His work against the Ryans on Sunday stood out in the light of defensive play. If there are any better linemen in the district than Costrella, then bring them along. Sonny O'Neill, the Hazelwood flash, was hurt in the last few minutes of play and had to be taken out. A badly wrenched shoulder was the outcome of that tackle.

The heavy plunging Moss Kunich did not make much impression on that Carrick line Sunday. And there is a decided impression that Rocky Kilroying should have tried to plunge for that last two yards with the game won if the ball went over. Two yards does not mean much to a plunging fullback. However, a forward pass was called, and Carrick intercepted that. Then the crowd went home. Frank Weaver said that his club could beat West View, and watching everything that the Park club had, it did. Kaltter, from Woodlawn, playing fullback for Carrick, looked real good.

Where will the Ryans and Port Vue play off that game? The great crowd on Sunday indicated one thing, both clubs have an immense following, but the Port Vue grounds are like the Quarry grounds at East Pittsburgh on the side of a hill, and the last place in the world to try and play a championship game. The Ryan-Port Vue game brought out many high hats. One of them was the head linesman reversing a decision of the umpire, after the referee had stated his line of vision was covered by the plunging line.

Another real battle will be carded this weekend at the Salt Works grounds when the Herb club, who just broke into the limelight Armistice Day by beating the Hiawatha club meets Hope-Harvey. Both teams are from the North Side and it seems that plenty of rivalry is going to be on tap.

Will the managers just book something easy for Sunday's games with an idea of preparing their outfits for the strenuous battles on Thanksgiving Day, or will they take a chance and try some more of that elimination stuff? Colleges figure this out when arranging a schedule, so why not the independents? What is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander. But however the games line up there will be some more record crowds on hand Turkey Day should the weather man give the boys an even break.

Studebaker's "Erskine Six" refused to take a back seat when the Studebaker "Commander" and "Dictator" were making and breaking records at the Atlantic City Speedway.

So an Erskine Six was sent out to make a record of its own for cars listing under $1000.

And with the help of AMOCO-GAS and AMOCO Motor Oil, a stock Erskine Six established a 24-hour average of better than 54 miles per hour! Just think of that pace maintained for nearly 1300 miles by a car costing less than $1000, proving the speed and endurance of "The Little Aristocrat"!

MAJOR LEAGUE ADVISORY COUNCIL MEETS, REVISES CODE

BASEBALL'S BIG THREE TO OFFER CHANGES

By LARRY WOLTZ.
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

CHICAGO, Nov. 15.—Baseball's "Big Three," the major league advisory council, met in the offices of Commissioner K. M. Landis yesterday, and of all the baseball meetings of the past there never has been a more harmonious one. Already the election of E. S. Barnard to the presidency of the American League has had its effect.

Meeting with the baseball commissioner, who is chairman of the advisory council, were President John Heydler of the National League, the recently elected President Barnard of the American and Mike Sexton of Rock Island, president of the National Association (the minors). It was Barnard's first experience as a member of the advisory council. They met for the purpose of discussing and making recommendations for certain rule changes governing the majors and National Association.

Some of the recommendations favored by the council and which will be submitted to the majors and minors at their December meetings follow:

1. The creation of a disabled list.

2. There shall be no optional transfer of a player who has been in either or both major leagues three successive seasons.

3. No umpire shall receive or be offered money or other remuneration for recommending a player from the league in which he officiates.

4. No player or manager shall be a stockholder in any club in the league in which he is employed other than the club by which he is employed, and then only by an agreement approved by the advisory council.

5. No employe, umpire, president, secretary or treasurer of a major league shall be a stockholder of a major league club or loan money or become guarantee or security for any such club unless previous thereto all facts of transaction shall be fully disclosed to the other clubs of the league and to the council and such transaction shall be approved by the clubs and advisory council.

There is little doubt but that the recommendations will be adopted.

consulting with his legal advisors today probably will go to the mat with Rickard on the contract which Tex says gives him exclusive rights to Tunney's services next year. The champion disputes the exclusive feature of the agreement. He plans to abide by this contract only in the event that he will be free before or afterward to engage in a Chicago bout promoted by Jim Mullen of that city.

The battle of Newark is scheduled to open some time Wednesday in the Federal Court, Newark, with Judge Runyon presiding. Presumably the first day will be taken up in the selection of a jury.

The switch to a jury trial is believed to be an advantage for Dempsey. Kearns had opposed it successfully up to last Friday on the ground that a jury would be prejudiced in favor of Dempsey.

A notable array of counsel will surround the two Jacks when they come to that legal grip.

MANDELL DEMANDS $65,000 FOR BOUT

DETROIT, Nov. 15.—(INS.)—Sammy Mandell wants $65,000 with a percentage privilege to fight the winner of the Jimmy McLarnin-Billy Wallace bout in a world's lightweight championship match.

The terms were made known in a wire which Benny Ray, Olympia matchmaker, received from Manager Eddie Kane.

Kane's price is just $15,000 more than Ray offered for Mandell's services. The Olympia matchmaker said he hasn't changed his mind.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 15.—(INS.)—Sammy Mandell of Chicago, world's lightweight champion, is scheduled to make his debut in a Philadelphia ring, November 21. He will box Babe Bolin, Philadelphia Italian.

TAKES BLUES' BLUES AWAY

RALPH MICHAELS

One of the most versatile stars in the American Association, or any other league, is Ralph Michaels of the Kansas City Blues, whose brilliant fielding has done much to make the play of the Westerners far less doleful than their name would indicate. Michaels, whose home is in Etna, played three infield positions and in the outfield during the 1927 season and took rank with the best at every post in the matter of infrequency of errors.

Kansas City Finds Etna Boy Star

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

RALPH MICHAELS, a clever baseball player whose home is in Etna, played three infield positions and the outfield for the Kansas City club of the American Association, and acquitted himself favorably in all tasks, according to the official fielding figures of the circuit just issued.

"Mike" was an important member of a team which just missed winning the flag when Casey Stengel's Toledo Mudhens romped to victory on the last day of the race. The Etna athlete played 38 games at third, 25 at second, 32 at short and 12 in the outfield.

In hot corner tending, Ralph led the league in percentage, he making three misplays in 23 battles; he tied with Johnny Rawlings for high percentage at second; he was third in percentage at short and he did not make an error in his 12 games in the outfield.

Rawlings, by the way, was a jewel of consistency around second for Columbus. The ex-Pirate made only six errors in 72 contests.

Freddie Maguire, sent to the Mudhens by the Giants, was an outstanding infielder in the circuit. Maguire accepted almost 1,100 chances in 171 games as Toledo was winning the flag. Aside from firstbasemen, Maguire had more chances than any other infielder in the league.

CHILLY SAUCE
By CHILLY DOYLE

AMONG those who frequent the woods in quest of game nobody received more enjoyment and health than has come to Joe Harris in the 15-day bird season which closes today. Accompanying Joe on his trips since the first of the month was Brother Tom, who, like the first-sacker was an active member of the Eightieth Division. Joe and Tom were able to get the limit in pheasant every day they were out and thus they had a bountiful supply for a group of friends entertained by Joe and Mrs. Harris at Franklin on Sunday.

HARRIS appeared to be 100 per cent better in health than he was a month ago at the end of the exciting baseball festivities. The Pirates, it will be recalled, clinched the flag only a few days before the date of the series opener. As soon as the honor was made safe, Joe hustled to Lincoville to consult with his favorite physician.

IT NOW develops that Joe's friend and healer found him "very low". He knew, however, that Bush wanted to keep the veteran in the lineup, so Harris was not apprised of his condition until after the battles were over. Since that time he has responded to treatment in an encouraging manner; Joe, therefore, thinks he will regain his normal health and strength.

THE Pittsburgh club purchased Joe as an emergency measure. Few thought he would play in half the games and less people figured Joe to be a regular in 130 odd battles. In one of the worst flurries of the year, the Pirates had the Cardinals as foemen in St. Louis. The Redbirds won the first two games, 2 to 1, and each was a hectic fight, they featuring Alexander, Haines, Aldridge and Hill. Keeping their heads up and fighting all the why, the Bucs won the last two scraps.

HARRIS was close to collapse in this series. Dunie Bush knew it, but he asked Joe to play if he could stand up and say a few words to an infield that was inclined to fizzle whenever Harris left the game.

"Even if you can't get a hit, you can help by your presence in the lineup," said Dunie, and Harris staggered through.

JOE gave Paul Waner a stiff fight for batting supremacy up to the time where his health failed him. But Harris' first concern was the whole club, and he tried to stay at his post day in and day out when he could scarcely carry a bat to the plate. The fact that Joe was in action in both the two big winning streaks shows that Bush had the right idea as to Joe's presence.

GLENN WRIGHT was the victim of the worst beanball of the year in St. Louis, Wright fortunately being struck on a solid spot of the face and ear, else the incident might have been extremely serious. While the Pirates absolved Vic Keen of any blame, they used the accident as a means to scare certain nervous batters in the Cardinal lineup in an effort to cop the game. The Bucs won the contest, after Glenn had been taken off the field. One or two of the hard-hitting Cards were ready to do some nifty footwork around the plate after hearing the remarks of a few of Our Boys.

EARL SMITH has more than one way of getting the goat of a good hitter. Forbes Field patrons may have noted the foot-loose movement of Eddie Roush when he walks up to the barrier. Well, Earl has a way of accentuating Eddie's nervousness—and the idea of the catcher is quite cute, to say the least.

ROUSH is one of the highest paid men in the league. He is drawing down $20,000 or better per season, and Smith, of course knows it, and he knows that Eddie is the sort of a business man who knows how to get the coin and save or invest it safely.

LEGION AIDS AT BLAST

That the American Legion of Allegheny county offered its services to succor the destitute and patrol the devastated area to prevent looting following the North Side blast on Monday was revealed by William M. Stieren, Jr., adjutant of the Allegheny county committee of the legion, at a joint meeting of the Carnegie, Bridgeville and South Hills posts and auxiliaries in Carnegie Legion hall last night.

According to Adjt. Stieren, a committee of the county legion called upon Mayor Charles H. Kline at his office at noon Monday and offered the services of the legion in any way they could be used, and a portion of the committee accompanied the Mayor to the blast district. At that time reports were that the situation was such that the police and firemen on duty were hard pressed to hold the crowds of morbidly curious in check. Matters gradually improved, but the legion members were held in readiness to serve. At the same time, headquarters were set up in the Victory and Cantigny posts on the North Side and later cots were placed in the rooms to care for approximately 50 of the homeless.

Other speakers at the meeting included the Rev. C. F. Erwin of Wilmerding, John H. Newlin of McKeesport, Edward A. Hoak, Jr., junior vice commander of the Allegheny county committee; Dr. and Mrs. T. M. Stahlman of Dormont, Mr. and Mrs. John F. Franks of Bridgeville, Mrs. William Sloan of Carnegie, J. A. Ayres of Dormont and Harry Keck, sports editor of the Sun-Telegraph.

ARMY COACH SAYS BREAK WITH NAVY NOT LIKELY

WON'T END SERVICE TILTS

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—Any talk of a break in football or other athletic relations between the United States Naval and Military academies, over differences in eligibility regulations, is "absurd," Head Coach Biff Jones of the Army gridiron declared yesterday.

The rival service schools have signed a four-year football contract, under which this year's game in New York is the first to be played, so that there is no prospect of any rupture in relations at least for three more years, if at all, Coach Jones pointed out to the Associated Press.

Gossip of a split between Annapolis and West Point has had its basis in the decision of the Naval Academy, announced last June, to adopt the three-year varsity eligibility rule and not to schedule games with an institution lacking the same code.

City League Grid Tilt Shifted to Forbes Field

The City League football championship will be decided at Forbes Field instead of at the Pitt Stadium, as previously announced, it was made known by Faculty Manager Harrison of Westinghouse High School today. The venue for the title battle was changed only last night. Oliver, victor in Section 2, and Westinghouse, Section 1 winner, will begin play at 2:30 o'clock.

Harrison also announced that Westinghouse has booked Wilkinsburg High School for a game abroad for November 24, or the Saturday after Thanksgiving.

themselves might have got more fun out of it.

THERE never has been anything deceitful about scouting, as scouts often announce themselves when at their work of reconnoitering. The best argument against it, possibly, is that it cuts a little interest from the game.

Lack of scouting in some instances might make the work of the coaches more difficult, yet to the coaches who know their stuff, who keep abreast of the times, and who have ability, elimination of scouting would be a blessing, rather than a hindrance.

IT IS our parochial notion, coming from an admiration of the gentleman, that Jock Sutherland, the Pitt coach, so well does he drill his boys in the fundamentals of the game, that a Pitt team would fare as well, and possibly better than many others, on that day when scouting is eliminated. Sutherland knows all the strategy of the game and relies on orthodox stuff to put his team in the front rank. Give Sutherland a couple of good guards and a pair of sound tacklers and he will take his chance with any of the subtler points of the game, coming from trick formations, psychological dodges, and other tricks in the large bag, press-agented to a point where sounder things are more important.

But whether coaches are helped by scouting, the fact remains that the Pitt-Nebraska game which showed neither team knew much about the other, coming from the matter of geography, indicated that those games are best where the teams are great strangers to each other—in the matter of style.

CONSIDER the better excitement if before the annual conflict between Pitt and Wash-Jeff, Sutherland would say: "I haven't heard a word about Wash-Jeff other than the scores of their games or what I have read. I am ready to expect anything." And on top of this Andy Kerr would say: "My boys are set to do the best they can against anything new or old Pitt has this year. I know nothing of the Panthers beyond their record."

If the doctors of the game discover that aside from the higher tone coming from a discontinuance of scouting, the elimination of the current custom will make football even more thrilling, uncertain, the doctors will jump at the idea.

Nearly every move made is designed to make the game more attractive and here is a chance for another forward step.

THERE are existing agreements now regarding scouting, which may be the herald of a general armistice in this connection. Penn State, it ought to be reported, has done away with scouting entirely. State suggested that between them and all opposition there would be no scouting; a couple of teams agreed, but a couple did not go along. Even those who did not go along were freed from surveillance by the State coach, Hugo Bezdek, a splendid gesture.

IN THE four games of local appeal here, Pitt-W. & J., Pitt-Carnegie, Pitt-Wash-Jeff and Pitt-State a distinct advance would be made if all parties concerned refrained from getting advance information. It would not help the spiritual tone of our great contests, but it would tend to make for even more interesting battles. Why can't this be achieved before next season.

KECK

think he'd do. The world knows I was wrong."

MURRAY added he always was a fellow who liked his players neat and snappy on the field. A player in the order of Kiki Cuyler is his idea of a neat performer. He's always careful about his appearance and gives off the impression of "class" in his every movement, according to Murray.

"Nothing gives me so much pain as a careless player," Murray added. "Any time I see an outfielder lazily and sloppily tossing the ball back to the infield after a hit, I'm off him. The natural and easy way to throw the ball back is with a clean-cut overhand motion. The slow, underhand twist hurts the arm and looks terrible. I wouldn't give a dime for a ball player who does that and certainly wouldn't recommend him for a trial in the big leagues."

There's a lot in what Murray says. Ball players are paid to do their best a few short hours a day on the ball field, so why shouldn't they do it? So far as that goes, the same is true of performers in any other field of sport or in any walk of life. The best is none too good, if one is willing to accept money for performing such services.

HARRY O. STHOUSE of Oakland, in a letter, wants to know why such a fight as that between Rudy Ceder and Mike Dempsey at McKeesport last Thursday night was given advance publicity in the newspapers when Dempsey made such a sorry showing against Mickey Walker, then the welterweight champion, at Motor Square Garden four years ago. Well, for several reasons. First, because it was a news item that the fight was to be held; second, it was licensed by the State Athletic Commission; third, Dempsey, who has met all of the tough ones in the country, was not fighting a champion in Ceder, and, fourth, the public does not have to attend any show it does not favor and generally has sense enough to stay away from what gives promise of being a bad one. Any more reasons needed?

WEE WILLIE DAVIES of Charleroi, our own State champion, finds himself on the outside looking in as the New York Commission decides to accept the winner of an Izzy Schwartz-Newsboy Brown match as the new flyweight champion, to succeed the retired Fidel LaBarba. Davies has beaten Schwartz three out of four times, but lost the last one, in New York, last week, and that's what seems to count. Willie can get back in the running with a speedy return to his best form. He also has beaten Newsboy Brown, in addition to Schwartz, and has the class to clean up the entire field when he is right.

THE lid goes off the hockey season at Duquesne Garden tonight, with Pittsburgh standing pat on the players it had in the fold at the end of the 1926-27 campaign. It is a formidable array and if it gets off to a good start has as good a chance as any club in the circuit to grab off the championship honors in the National Professional League, which really is an international circuit, with Canadian cities strongly represented. The hockey fans here are rabid ones and the REAL sport season is just getting under way in their eyes. They've been hungering for tonight's dish ever since the curtain went down on the last campaign.

SPORT COMMENT

out of fans. The game can be built into one of the strongest attractions on the local program.

Nebraska, blessed with abundant and heavy material year after year, plays a schedule of seven contests, of which seven are "big" games. The policy from now on will be to meet five Missouri Valley Conference teams and to play two big intersectional games, and it is known that there is a strong desire on the Cornhuskers' part to keep Pitt on the list.

THIS feeling is reciprocated here, especially after Saturday's remarkable contest, and it is pretty safe to predict that the brilliantly-clad Westerners will appear here again in 1929.

If they do, it is safe to say that at least twice as many fans as sat in the stadium last Saturday will be present.

A contract signed a year ago provides that the Panthers are to appear in Lincoln next November, and it was stated by one of the visiting officials Saturday that the Pitt game will be the leading attraction on their home card for 1928.

AMONG the baseball players of the Pittsburgh district who made such impressive records in the minor leagues this year that they are being looked upon as possible come-backs in the majors, don't overlook Ed Stauffer, one of the most capable and popular flingers ever developed on the local lots.

During the 1927 season, Stauffer pitched for the Fort Smith club of the Western Association, and his work was one of the features of the season in that league. Not only did he win 18 games and lose only six, for the lofty percentage of .750, but no fewer than five of his victories were shutouts, and he pitched a one-hit game, a two-hit game and a three-hit game. Besides, he led the league in strikeouts with the large total of 137.

JOE SCHULTZ, former Beltzhoover resident, who managed the Topeka (Kan.) club in the same league, is authority for the statement that Stauffer was the best pitcher in the Western Association this year.

Another strong booster for Stauffer is Frank (Bull) Brown, local umpire, who was officiating in the Eastern League when Ed was pitching there for the Bridgeport club.

"It always was a puzzle to me why he remained in that league for so long," said Frank, "for he clearly was too good a pitcher for the league and belonged in higher company. He was one of the best pitchers to come under my observation, and he's a fine, clean boy, too.

Stauffer went up to the Cubs from Bridgeport for a trial in 1923, and though he did not stick at the time, he has since been doing such great work in the minors that there is a chance one of the big league clubs may grab him again, as the Pirates did with success this year in the case of Johnny Miljus, another Pittsburgh boy.

STAUFFER is 29 years old, but has always kept himself in the best of shape by taking good care of himself in and out of season, so that his age is no bar to his coming up to the big show again.

Besides, it must not be forgotten that Dazzy Vance, Remy Kremer, Joe Petty, Johnny Miljus, Carmen Hill and others were near that age or older when they came back to the majors from the minors for their present stay in the fast set.

And no one was able to discover during the season that closed last month very many things wrong with the pitching of the men named.

Look for the Red Gasoline in the "Pure Oil Blue" Pumps

Product of THE PURE OIL COMPANY, U. S. A.

We know what we like, don't we, Old Pipe!

PRINCE ALBERT, and plenty of it, huh? Well, we can justify that on any number of counts. It's more than mere preference. There are sound reasons for liking Prince Albert above anything else.

Take fragrance, for instance. P. A. has 'em all stopped there. Every time I open the tidy red tin, I get a brand-new thrill. A tobacco that smells like that would have to be good, if you ask me. Yes, Sir!

And then take taste. Every puff tells a man that P. A. is cool and refreshing, with a mellow-mildness that is a revelation. Mild, yes, but not wishy-washy. P. A.'s rich, full-bodied flavor balances its mildness and makes it a smoke!

But all the talk in the world won't do a man any good, unless he acts on it. A load of long-burning P. A. in the bowl of his pipe will tell him volumes—and in language he likes. It's the personal test that counts, after all. I don't believe I can add to that.

Not only quality, but quantity, too—TWO full ounces in every tin.

PRINCE ALBERT

—the national joy smoke!

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, Nov. 15.—Fresh crop damage advices from Argentina, together with word of buying for continental Europe led to an early brisk upturn today in wheat values here. Hot winds were reported in parts of Argentina and the crop 10 days late. Opening at ½c to 1¾c higher, Chicago wheat held near to the initial range. Corn and oats were also firmer, corn starting ¼c to ⅝c up, and subsequently showing additional gains. Provisions were easy.

At noon wheat was ½c to ⅝c net higher, and corn at 1¾c to 1¾c advance.

According to dispatches today from a Chicago crop expert at Rafaela, Santa Fe province, Argentina, hot winds are doing great damage to wheat. He adds that there has also been serious frost damage, that rust is very general and that yields per acre will average but 10 bushels. On the other hand, advices today from a different source said early threshing returns in North Argentine are satisfactory and that reports of rust damage are emphatically denied.

Upturns in wheat prices here today were checked to some extent by beneficial rains in Buenos Aires province, Argentina. However, it was stated that in South Argentina rains are generally needed and it is feared the yield will be below average.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—There was no change in the raw sugar market early today, but a continued good inquiry was reported, with additional sales confirmed of about 100,000 bags of Cuban for November shipment at 4.71c duty paid.

The better spot demand and a growing belief that the sugar production of the world will be kept closer to probable requirements as a result of the recent conference in Paris, seemed responsible for the better feeling in raw sugar futures. Consequently there was renewed covering and outside buying which advanced prices 2 to 3 points, although there was a good deal of liquidation on the upturn and early rallies were not maintained, prices at midday being about 1 to 2 points net higher.

In refined sugar, prices were firmer, refiners adhering more closely to their list prices. One refiner was accepting business for nearby shipment at 5.70c, while others quoted 5.80c. The demand, however, was only moderate.

PITTSBURGH'S CONTRASTS

By B. C. FORBES

homes or villages or towns far ahead of the times. Not until a few months ago did our largest steel company—the United States Steel Corporation—announce the establishment of a research department under a recognized authority—this notwithstanding that research has played a vital part in developing other industries for a decade, not to say a generation. In the field of advertising the steel industry also has been laggard rather than leader.

As for the coal industry, my attitude was and is no different from that of most people, namely, that, taken by and large, it has been about the worst-managed industry in America, an industry guilty of periodically upsetting, disturbing, destroying the harmonious flow of commerce and industry in this country.

WELL, the first thing that struck me on driving through the city was its sharp contrasts. Here you have a series of beautiful, glorious institutions of learning and of art. There you run into drab rows of workers' homes the antitheses of inviting. Here you drive through exquisite parks. In an instant you find yourself bump up against a many-stalked, necessarily grimy steel plant of gigantic magnitude. One moment you are shown palaces fit for kings. The next you again face working-class quarters at the opposite end of the social scale—inevitably so, of course; but in Pittsburgh they are all thrown so bewilderingly close together.

I have come away with the feeling that a new day is dawning for Pittsburgh and for the steel industry—although it may be slower in coming for the coal industry.

PITTSBURGH'S industrial founders and pioneers were individualists — strong-willed, capable, powerful giants. Therefore disposed to be autocratic. The race of individualists, the race of dictators, the race of "masters" who ruled unquestioning servants is passing.

Democrats and industrial democracy are taking their place. The modern executive values and cultivates good will, knowing that without it his organization cannot permanently prosper to the full.

Pittsburgh is destined to benefit incalculably from this transition.

AN excellent civic spirit is developing among industrial and other business men. A committee of leading men of affairs has just been organized by the mayor to co-operate with him in working for the well-being and progress of the city—a praise worthy, significant development.

The generosity, the public-spiritedness, the philanthropies of Pittsburgh business men, I was repeatedly and authoritatively informed, never before reached their recent and present measure.

AS a result of all this, new things are taking shape in Pittsburgh. Details must await a more lengthy visit.

THE BUNGLE FAMILY — Herman is Missing

NO, CLARA, HERMAN DID NOT RETURN LAST NIGHT BUT I WASN'T SURPRISED BECAUSE WE HAD A FEW WORDS AT DINNER AND HE MARCHED OUT WITH HIS HEAD IN THE AIR AND MADE SOME CUTTING REMARKS AS HE HAS DONE ON OTHER OCCASIONS WHEN HE DECIDED TO STAY AT A HOTEL UNTIL—

SHE'S AT THE DOOR. COME AND TELL HER WHAT HAPPENED.
WHERE IS MY HERMAN? HE WENT TO THE RIVER WITH YOU, HE DID NOT RETURN. I KNOW—
MY DEAR MRS. LAMB, KINDLY CALM YOURSELF! I ONLY KNOW THAT WHEN WE GOT TO THE RIVER YOUR HUSBAND SAID TO ME, WAIT RIGHT HERE. THEN HE WALKED AWAY. I WAITED FOR AN HOUR, I HAVEN'T SEEN HIM SINCE THEN.

THIS WAGGISH WORLD by Roy K. Moulton

THIS column has received many agonized letters from customers protesting against the proposal to have all housewives paid a regular salary by their husbands. It seems some of these birds are paying about all the salaries they can afford, which, added to taxes, household expenses and whatnot, runs into money.

A man can even be a kind of Russell Sage these days and still spend all he gets hold of. The practically unanimous opinion of our readers is that this proposed legislation be dropped. If not, there will be retaliatory measures by way of nation-wide strikes by husbands.

THERE is such wide-spread interest in this matter and so many husbands seem to be gravely alarmed that we have sent our inquisitive photographer out to investigate the thing and to arrive at some conclusion as to the opinion of the man in the street.

This Man-in-the-Street is certainly some important person. No great movement can be satrted or stopped without him and yet we have seen many men in the street whose faces were as vacant as McAdoo's presidential boom. In fact, we have never noticed one who seem to be giving the serious affairs of the nation a thought.

Our inquisitive photographer stationed himself at the door of Max's Busy Bee lunch room and was given the following interviews:

CIENFUEGOS EL ESPANOLA, a Swedish thimble-denter, living at 578 Pushcart Parkway, said:

"Salaries for wives? Sure. Mine gets a salary now. She gets mine."

Henry Frowse, junior partner of Mildew & Frowse, butter and egg dealers, at 563 Chiblain Concourse:

"Yes, yes, I believe the best team won the world series. The Babe mighta got a couple of more hits."

Titus A. Drumm, millionaire philanthropist, who once gave the Salvation Army some old magazines:

"No, I do not believe in shirts that button in front. The old-fashioned ones with stiff bosoms are the best."

Wilbur Winterhalter, a vacuum filler, living at 6745 Baloney boulevard:

"I certainly believe that the hot dog is the best skin food. Though some, of course, prefer bananas. If my wife ever gets any of my salary she will be entitled to it. I can't get any of it myself."

Horace Hamstring, a watermelon plugger, living at 6732 Instalment avenue:

"They may talk all they like, but they will never make me believe that Hayes beat Tilden for the Presidency honestly."

SOME of the gentlemen interviewed dodged the question of salaries for wives and we would be among the last to blame them. It is a serious question. When a man dodges the question he also dodges the consequences. Husbands are getting canny.

But if the average wife gets a salary for herself she will then have two—her own and her husband's.

Bring on the foolish legislation. Nothing makes us sick.

BUGS BAER Says

AMERICA still continues to celebrate its armistices under the mistaken notion that it bought the goodwill with the business and that peace is its permanent fixture.

If we can believe a member of the English Parliament we are living in a clown's vahalla.

He points out that taking the pins out of the war map does not change the chart. The pin holes are still there.

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER.

According to him Russia must get Bessarabia or there will be fighting soon. We don't know where Bessarabia is but we had better find out, for it looks as if some of us will spend a winter there.

Italy and Jugoslavia must tangle up over Albania. And it's six, two and even that the League of Nations will be one of the candles on that birthday cake.

Hungary was divided up among the Rumanians and Czechoslavians after an agreeable conference in which everybody agreed but the Hungarians. The next time Lindbergh flies over that country he had better be using a stove lid for a sofa cushion.

The French and Italians are matching pennies in Tangiers. All big games start small.

The Polish-German boundaries and the famous Polish corridor are a couple of ingrown hairs that will soon be a full beard.

If Russia establishes war against Rumania the rest of the cats in the bag will have to start scratching in selfish defense.

Hungary will have to mobilize before the Turkish ballets start dancing. Italy is Hungary's friend while France has a hook-up with Jugoslavia. That's six nations in the war. And it ain't even started yet.

There are so many secret peace treaties in Europe that the foreign nations must fight every 20 years to find out just where they stand.

In case Germany takes a poke at Poland it means that England cannot be neutral. England has such a big navy that it considers peace an insult.

And as for scrapping the American Navy, we are foolish if we even get our nails manicured or take out our false teeth at night.

The treaty of Paris signed in 1856 has just been repudiated. This indicates that the world is just catching up on its deferred business.

This treaty lasted that long because it was overlooked.

And it looks as if the blow-off will happen even in spite of the optimists who claim it will take an unusually harmonious peace conference to start the next war.

Mercy Must Be Prompt On Heels of Disaster

Disaster has laid its terrible hand on Pittsburgh.

Death, its companion, snuffed out lives of our neighbors, friends, relatives.

Hundreds were injured.

Homes, factories, business places extending over a wide expanse of territory, have been wrecked or demolished. Hundreds of others were damaged to the extent of shattered windows and broken furniture hurled to floors by the force of the explosion of the huge gas tank in Reedsdale street, North Side.

So extensive has been the devastation that the full measure of damage to life and property will not be known for days.

Enough is known, however, to warrant the statement that the explosion has given Pittsburgh one of the most terrible experiences in its history. The effect is as if a titanic storm had swept over a populous district. Death and destruction have left calamitous evidence. It will take many months to restore that which may be rebuilt, to say nothing of the lives that cannot be recalled nor personal injuries which will leave many victims permanently maimed and disfigured.

Yet this must not be a time for discouragement, but rather for reconstruction.

First must come relief for the hundreds of sufferers. The hand of mercy was quick to appear, but it must be supported. Relief that is given quickly is twice as effective. A witness of the horror realized that when he left $50 for relief work with the Sun-Telegraph yesterday at noon, immediately after driving through the stricken district just after the explosion.

Numerous agencies for the extension of aid were at work soon after the mighty blast. This work must be continued indefinitely. It will be—and all of us must aid.

Then will come the task of physical restoration.

And the matter of responsibility. Both will be trying problems.

But Pittsburgh will solve them!

Join Your Red Cross Now And Help It Do Your Work

The Pittsburgh Chapter of the American Red Cross this week opened its annual drive for members. The chapter's "territory" is Allegheny county and the membership quota is 80,000, less than 5 per cent of the county population. The money quota is $120,000, or about 8 cents per capita, in round numbers. Membership "classes" range from contributing, at $1, to patron, at $100.

Should any special plea be needed to indicate the privilege everyone has in joining this worthy organization—your arm of mercy in time of distress? If so, recall the work it is annually called upon to do. In the last year alone its relief was extended in 77 disasters and in only two, the Florida hurricane and the flood in the Mississippi Valley, were extraordinary appeals necessary.

Only part of your money went into this general work last year and only part of that raised in the present campaign will be devoted to such purposes. Fifty per cent will remain with the Pittsburgh chapter for local relief work.

No argument is necessary. You know the Red Cross is efficiently organized to give relief promptly. It carries your dollar to one who needs it far more quickly than you could do it yourself. It really is your servant—your agent—in looking after a duty you would be glad to do personally, but in which you would be greatly hampered were you to attempt to perform that service individually.

See that your good servant is well armed. Join the Red Cross now, if you haven't already done so.

What of It?

Barbara Frietchie is the latest target for those who enjoy ing to make lies out of legends.

A Frederick, Md., historical shark seeks to cast doubt on the waving of Whittier's heroine, who told Stonewall Jackson's to "shoot if you must this old grey head." She was ill in he says; Jackson's men didn't march past her house any; and even if she had waved a flag the banner probably would e been the stars and bars of the Confederacy.

Similarly it was announced recently that there never was any ooner Hesperus "that sailed the wintry sea," despite Longfellow. The charge of the well-known Light Brigade has been belittled, and the famous Horatius denied his bridge.

But why worry? Poetry beloved of many generations lives, and nobody cares whether it's 100 per cent fact or 99 per cent fiction. Let the quibblers quibble.

Hitched to Stay

What about changing the marriage laws as suggested by Judge Burnell of Los Angeles so couples would enter into a five-year contract, renewable or not at the pleasure of the parties?

This about it—the judge is considering only "the thousands out of whom the divorce laws are making liars."

It is easy enough to understand how he gets that way. Watching the interminable procession of men and women clamoring for freedom before his rostrum, no wonder this jurist feels the whole population is mismated.

But he forgets that the matrimonial misfits who jam his court are just the misfits. There's a great, sane, happy, majority of people who would briskly resent his five-year marriage scheme.

THEY GET MARRIED TO STAY MARRIED.

Jane Addams' Fine Example

By DR. FRANK CRANE

JANE ADDAMS said the other day in a lecture at Pasadena that now that boys and girls of 15 and 16 years of age are assuming the responsibilities of adults, we ought to consider the social welfare of children almost before they are out of their babyhood.

They have installed at Hull House, which is Miss Addams' institution in Chicago, a pre-school age department where mothers of very young children may study the problem of behaviorism.

Jane Addams is, in many respects, a remarkable woman. She has chosen the plan of going to live among the poorer people and influencing them by example rather than by preaching to them.

University centers or colonies of educated people living in the slums exist in many places, but probably Hull House in Chicago is one of the most conspicuous successes.

In former days when I was living in Chicago I wrote some lines to Jane Addams, which I have been often asked to repeat. I will give them here:

THE RIVER OF GOD.

"There is a river the streams whereof
Make glad the city of God;
I went through death to find this thing
And all through Heaven I trod.

"Now Heaven's a wide and wonderful place,
But the people are much as we,
So I came back home in sorrow and thirst,
And there one said to me:

"'Oh, fool, you have traveled far to find
What you have crossed over time and again,
For the river of God is in Halstead Street,
And is running black with men.'

"'Then maybe Chicago's the city of God,'
Said I, 'Perhaps,' said he,
'For to find that city you need no wings
To fly, but eyes to see.

"'For, low in the rushes the river sings
And sweet is its spirit lure
For it waters the joys of loving and living
That grow in the hearts of the poor.'

"So I built me a home in the city slums,
Where the river runs night and day,
And there I sit 'neath the tree of life
And teach the children to play.

"And ever I soil my hands in the river,
But ever it cleans my soul,
As I draw from the deep with the silver cord
And fill the golden bowl."

New York Day by Day

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—New York's mid-center is a daily bedlam of noise. From 9 o'clock in the morning until 5 in the evening an incessant clatter and screech fill the air. To those used only to the sporadic bark of a dog, the moo of a cow or the honk of a Ford it is pretty terrifying.

From a tenth story Broadway window today I listed the following noises: A shrill police whistle, a clanging ambulance, building riveting, a calliope, excavation booms, auto horns—from the deep "Bee-beep!" to the high pitched siren, a medley of "Extree!" cries, the rumble of surface cars, the rattle of the L and the toot of liner whistles.

All this in a period of ten minutes. Scarcely an hour passes without the ear-splitting shrieks of a fire wagon passing through town. Or the crash of signal rockets around Grand Central. From subway gratings comes that eerie shriek of steel against steel of flying expresses.

It is only at night cathedral chimes and church bells may be heard above the mighty din. Yet so inured are New York nerves to the riotous rhythm that few natives pay any attention. It is the out-of-towner who wonders how in the world we galoots live here.

New York is known in the outland as a city of "loud talkers." People do not understand the native is merely used to pitching his voice high to offset noise, and has not as yet made the modulated adjustment to more peaceful surroundings.

New Yorkers have become tolerant of syncopated clatter because they have to. Last winter a show played to capacity next door to the roar of night building. Frequently during the performance actors would have to stop short in their lines until it was a little more quiet.

In a small town the average jazz band can be heard several blocks away at night. More than 200 are thumping and tooting in the Broadway area every night and few can be heard next door.

Word comes that night life in Paris, in the doldrums for two years, has been fanned into a new flame. Jed Kiley has opened up a new ringle-dangle in Montparnasse, around the corner from the Dome. Billy Reardon has a dancing place in rue Caumartin. J. Blondet another in rue St. Anne. Barney Gallant is planning a branch club near the opera. Maurice's brother, Oscar Mouvet, is to offer a new room.

A returning New Yorker tells of an escape from death on a Mexican ranch that flushes up a set of gooseplmples. He was sitting around a ranch house when he felt something crawling under his pants leg. He jumped up quickly, stamped his foot and out tumbled a poisonous centiped. Had he clapped his hand over the itchy sensation the result would have doubtless been fatal.

As one who is perfectly willing to sit on the curb munching ginger snaps and await a parade, it seems to me New York parades are always a distinct disappointment. They offer the same bands, the same welcoming officials and the same uniformed marchers. If you see one, you have seen all, and that is somehow a great pity. Give some men a uniform and they'll parade themselves to death.

Eating places in the theatrical district fill shortly after 7 o'clock with chorus girls who must eat a hasty bite and be off for the first curtain. It is noticeable that most of them seem tired and listless and yet they must shortly smirk, smile and display great animation. Young girls seeking stage careers via the chorus would receive an entirely different idea of stage glamour watching them.

I am told that at fancy banquets given on Long Island the catering companies officiating are provided with private detectives who are also skilled waiters, butlers and waiter captains. At such affairs it is the theory that every employe and every guest is under suspicion and must be watched.

You know those movie captions, "He was so dumb," etc.? Well, I've thought up one. Here it is: "He was so dumb he wrote movie titles."

Garrett P Serviss Says:

Stars in Youth and Age

"I am 75 years old, but when a boy I was told, as we are today, that the two end stars in the bowl of the Great Dipper pointed to the North star. Then the two stars seemed to point direct to the pole, but now there is quite a variation. Has there really been a change?—W. E. B."

THE two stars (Alpha, the one nearest the pole, and Beta, the one farthest) are moving in space in almost opposite directions—Alpha westward and Beta eastward. But these are "proper motions," taking place so slowly from our point of view that it will require fifty thousand years for them to be displaced as much as a degree or two from their present positions. No change would be noticeable to the eye in a lifetime. So, your supposition is in error, the line of direction drawn through the "Pointers" being, except to careful astronomical measurement, the same today that it was in your youth.

But age wins in judgment over youth, for your present observation is correct, while the former one was wrong. Youth is uncritical, takes things in the lump, disregards slight variations and imperfections, and notices only the main outlines. Being told that those two stars pointed to the Pole Star, your imagination at once took fire and blinded your eyes to the deviation. It was not the deviation but the pointing that held your attention. It lent a personal interest to those stars, and instinctively you wanted them to point straight, just as one always assumes any hero to be perfect.

But now age has come, with its critical eyes and its many lessons of deception, and wonders how youth could have been so hasty and so inattentive to details. Once you could almost see a celestial sentiment standing there pointing with starry fingers to the pole of the heavens; now you perceive only two stars, without a shred of imagination left about them, rather oddly placed so that a line drawn through them indicates roughly the direction of another star that is quite near the pole. Science has corrected and replaced fancy.

And yet science has brought new food for the imagination, as well as for itself. Science has discovered the "proper motions" of these and other stars—a far greater marvel than would have been the most exact alignment of the "Pointers." It has found that all the seven bright stars that mark out the figure of the "Great Dipper," with the exception of the northern Pointer and the star at the outer end of the handle, are flying together in a common direction through space, like a strung-out flock of migrating geese—a bevy of giant suns journeying whither the constitution of the universe requires that they should go—while we poor little mortals stare at them out of the shadow of our small night, and fall into amaze over the greatness and the mystery of the boundless universe.

And why does the dissenting Pointer join fortunes with the rebellious star at the extremity of the Dipper's handle, and so abandon his foster brother and quit the company that, barring the penetrating eye of science, seems so brilliantly accordant?

But the constellations are not true "standings together" of the stars; they are like changing clouds, slowly evolving from form to form, or melting into formless space. With an insect's measure of time, we seem to view them as permanent scrolls on the architecture of the firmament, but to the gods they pass and roll away like morning mists. Yet every shining drop within them is a glaring sun!

Once Overs

By J. J. MUNDY

Expensive

SUCH a good bluffer you are that you have bluffed yourself.

You have bluffed so long that you feel that you can go ahead with assurance on any certain problem that interests you and get away with it.

You delay only because you feel that you have not the time to give sufficient attention to that certain proposition.

And why should you hurry?

You need not fear that anyone can present what you have in mind.

You have succeeded in making yourself think you are exceptional.

But are you?

If you are convinced of your invincibility you are due for a severe jolt.

If you have something in mind which up to this time has not been produced, you had better get busy on it.

A superior thought may present something so much better that your idea becomes worthless.

Don't bluff yourself longer with the idea that you are so extraordinary, for self-contentment is expensive.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Only Laughter

ONLY laughter sets you wholly free, quite released from every vexing need, lets you flout at world tyranny, makes you careless lord of thought and deed. Riches may unbind some weighty chains, yet such respite is but brief and small; riches bring their own dark doubts and pains . . . only laughter frees you from them all. Laugh then, blithely as the robins sing, gaily as the larks their sweet notes call. To the winds your loss and longing fling; only laughter frees you from them all. Laughter loosens every dragging weight, sets you far above all fearful things, lets you look with wondering eyes at hate; lifts you, bears you on its silvery wings. Would you pass unscathed down all life's ways, master of unbounded liberty, trammeled neither by men's blame or praise? Only laughter gets you wholly free!

Something to Think About

By BRUNO LESSING

Prohibition

A CORRESPONDENT sends statistics proving that the national death rate has increased since prohibition went into effect. This is small cause for wonder. The stuff that the bootleggers sell is more or less poisonous. It is bound to kill in the end.

Everybody has been warned, over and over again, that the liquor which is being surreptitiously sold, is dangerous. If people are so foolish as to contribute to the death rate after all these warnings, is it not a manifestation of Destiny that many fools are being weeded out of the population? Fools are dangerous in a democracy. If the death rate goes up because we have too many fools in the land, there is nothing to worry about.

Those who are opposed to prohibition and who, having no use or respect for this law, manufacture their own wine or beer, do not die from the effects. The stuff may be unpalatable, but it is wholesome. God ordained it that the juice of the grape should ferment. Likewise the juice of hops and barley.

The bootlegger is the pest of the prohibition question. Because so many people see in prohibition nothing but a question of alcohol or non-alcohol and the bootlegger provides poor alcohol. The man who wants a glass of beer or wine is neither immoral nor dishonest. The bootlegger is both.

And when you see dishonesty and immorality introduced, on a big scale, into the panorama of a democracy, you see danger to the fabric of government.

The most intelligent solution of the problem which has, to this day, been suggested is to amend the Volstead law so that beer may be imported from Germany, Czechoslovakia, Holland, Norway, Sweden and Japan and wine from France, Italy, Spain, Portugal, South America and Australia.

The advantages of this course are as follows:

Those who want to drink beer and wine could get better stuff than was ever produced or ever could be produced in the United States. The governments of those countries supervise the production of these beverages, the climates and soil resources produce better material than we possess and the manufacturers have standards of excellence, removed from the love of gain and love of meddling in politics, which we Americans have not yet attained.

Furthermore, by admitting this influx of beer and wine, it would be easy for the government to control it. American capital and labor would not be involved. Vested interests would not be destroyed. And the brewers and vintners would not interfere in our politics.

In addition to which we would have a revenue of over a billion dollars a year if we imposed a high duty on such importations. Which might help to cut down the taxes we are paying to the government and to the bootleggers.

Yes, that is the best and most intelligent solution for those who see in prohibition nothing but the case of alcohol versus non-alcohol.

But for those intelligent and broad-minded people who see in prohibition the manifestation of the puritanic and intolerant virus which has crept into our way of thinking and which is undermining the moral and mental and spiritual stamina of the country, this solution is a poor make-shift.

Tales That Are Told

Bad By Any Name

AN OLD woman who had called in the doctor to give her treatment for a cold was somewhat grumpy when she found that her own doctor had been unable to come, and had sent a young deputy.

After questioning and examining the patient, the young doctor nodded wisely and said:

"Ah, I know what's the matter with you. You are suffering from nasal catarrh."

The old woman looked disgustedly at the doctor.

"Hoots, man," she said. "I sent for you to cure me cauld—no' to christen it."

Safe!

AN OLD lady was going down a coal mine for the first time in her life. As the cage descended she suddenly noticed how she and the rest of the party were dependent upon a single rope to which it was attached.

"Do you think it's quite safe?" she asked rather anxiously of a miner as she glanced att he rope.

"Same as the Bank, ma'am," returned the grimy miner cheerfully. "There's nothing to be afraid of. These ropes are guaranteed to last exactly 12 months, and this one ain't due to be renewed till tomorrow."—London Answers.
